The Soldiers' Money
Imagination's Power
Some Headlines

By Arthur Brisbane

DODGE CITY, KAN., Jan. 30—Through California, Arizona, New Mexico, Southern Colorado, and now as far as Dodge City in Kansas, this fast Santa Fe train runs across the continent in a matter of fact way. For conductors and porters it is as much a matter of course as a New York trip from the Battery to Harlem for a subway guard.

If you can afford it, you should make this trip. If not, you should make it as it is made by the family waving six or eight arms from a small automobile on the highway beside the railroad track. The trip in that car with five passengers, plenty of luggage on both sides and in the back, costs for gas and oil less than $50. No excuse for not seeing the whole of this country.

Secretary Mellon tells the soldiers that it would take three thousand four hundred millions of dollars to pay their cash bonus and this would raise taxes in general and "ruin" the nation, retarding instead of helping prosperity."

Secretary Mellon is probably the country's greatest financial expert. What he says commands respect.

But soldiers who want their money in cash, that they may spend it as they choose, feel that if prosperity came when the nations poured out billions for airships that wouldn't fly, surface ships that never left the dock, prosperity also might be established on a small scale by soldiers spending their few billions.

To control men, appeal to their imagination. Napoleon knew it. Dressed in magnificent robes of ermine and velvet, he took the imperial crown from the hands of the Pope and placed it on his own head at his coronation.

Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, knows it, as proved by his plans for the approaching campaign.

The Albuquerque Journal tells you that from Tucumcari, Arch Hurley has sent to Chicago's mayor two donkeys and a magnificent horse.

In his election parade Mayor Thompson will ride the fine horse, dressed as a cowboy, big hat, high heels and all. The two donkeys will follow behind carrying dummies representing Thompson's competitors in the campaign.

The dummies will have to think of something ingenious to offset that blow.

These are some of the headings on the front page of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, telling what goes on in our prohibition era that was to "end crime."

"$80,000 Faro Trap in Loop."
"Gang Tricks Rich Victim With Society Woman Lure."
"Florist Is Found Shot to Death in West Side Mystery."
"$300,000 Rum Seized."
"Reward Spurs Hunt for Store Killers."
"Rush Police Killer from Berwyn Jail as Mob Organizes."

For the Chicago Herald and Examiner and other important newspapers, Calvin Coolidge has written his opinion that old age pensions are not advisable. Says he:

"What a self-respecting people needs is not a system of old age pensions but a population made sufficiently skilled by education and sufficiently self-controlled and well-disposed by the help of religion, so that old age pensions would be a superfluity. Unless real reform comes from within the problem will never be solved."

Education may some day provide for old age. Meanwhile, what "self respecting old people" want is something to eat and a place to sleep outside of the poor house.

They have plenty of religion, but can't eat it, unfortunately.

After you have taken all the work out of an old horse, you should either knock him on the head or feed him.

After it has taken all the work out of old men and women, their country can't knock them on the head and therefore, having had their work, it ought to feed them.

Good news for fruit and vegetable growers. Swift & Co., the great Chicago packers, will add to their activities the canning of vegetables and fruits, thus adding Swift & Co.'s wide distributing powers to the resources of the growers.

Production is solved, distribution is the problem. Government regulations, preventing the packers from going into any kind of business, or engaging in any kind of distribution, are harmful.

The best possible way to help the farmer is to encourage distribution, which means greater consumption and greater prosperity.

Mussolini Denies Hit-and-Run Story

GARRETT TRIAL TESTIMONY ENDS

NEVER SAW VANDERBILT, DUCE SAYS

John W. Davis Is Expected to Head Gen. Butler's Defense Counsel

Copyright, 1931, by International News Service

Rome, Jan. 30 (INS)—Premier Benito Mussolini today authorized International News Service to deny allegations contained in the speech of Gen. Butler.

The premier denied that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., had been his guest on a tour of Italy.

"I never saw Cornelius Vanderbilt in my life," Il Duce declared emphatically.

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—The expectation that John W. Davis, prominent New York lawyer and 1924 Democratic nominee for President, would head the counsel for Maj.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler during his court martial, was expressed today by friends of the Marine officer who have been studying the case.

Gen. Butler has already asked Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, an old friend of his service days during the Boxer rebellion, to act as one of counsel during the court-martial.

DISCUSSES COUNSEL

Arrangements for counsel were discussed today in the office of Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, a Washington attorney and friend to Butler. With Maj. Leonard were Lieut.-Col. T. F. Archer, quartermaster of the marine post at Quantico, and Brig.-Gen. Randolph C. Berkeley, acting commandant of the post.

The four men were closeted together for nearly two hours.

The court-martial was ordered yesterday, after Butler had submitted to Secretary Adams an explanation of a recent Philadelphia speech in which he was quoted as retelling a story by a friend about Premier Mussolini running over a child and paying no attention to the accident.

SAVED FROM DEATH

Since retiring from the Marines in 1931, Leonard has practiced law in Washington. At one time he was assistant judge advocate general of the Navy.

He and Butler served together in the Boxer rebellion in China. The general once was saved from possible death by Leonard during a campaign at Tien Tsin. Leonard's left arm was shattered by gun fire as he effected the rescue of Butler, himself badly wounded.

While the matter seemed at an end so far as the State Department was concerned, marine and naval officials were busy today selecting officers for the court-martial. Naval regulations specify not less than five nor more than 13 officers of rank higher than that of the defendant shall constitute the court.

SEEK TRIAL BOARD.

All rear admirals of the Navy outrank major-generals of the Marine Corps; only Maj.-Gen. Fuller, Marine commandant, outranked Gen. Butler.

To obtain the desired one-third Marine officers for the court, officials were prepared to search ranking officers in the retired list.

The date and place of the court martial has not been named. Officers at the Quantico, Va., marine post, where Butler is under self-arrest as ordered, said by telephone today he was continuing to remain

Essex Duck Inn Prey of Flames

Essex, Jan. 30—Essex Duck Inn on Northern ave. was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated at $30,000. No one was in the building at the time.

Help was called from Ipswich and West Gloucester, but water to fight the flames had to be pumped from a nearby pond after the ice was broken.

Kenneth Elwell, who was milking a cow in a barn nearby, saw the flames after the fire had been burning for some time. He called to his mother to give the alarm and then forced open one of the doors of the inn and rushed through locking for occupants but found none.

Some of the furniture was saved by firemen. The structure had about 15 rooms and has been an inn for two years. Formerly it was the summer residence of Lawrence Burham of Boston.

Princeton Rejects Pillsbury Bequest

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 30 (AP)—Princeton University has joined Harvard and Columbia in refusing to accept a $25,000 bequest from the late Albert E. Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, said the university could not accept the gift under the stipulations.

$435,000,000 GAS, LIGHT MERGER ON

N. E. Power Associates, Mass. Utilities, N. Boston Lighting in Huge Combine

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

A $435,000,000 merger involving three of the greatest electric, gas and power corporations entrenched in the most populous sections of New England was in progress today with good prospects of being accomplished.

The merger involves:

1—The New England Power Association, whose estimated assets of $350,000,000 include the vast modern waterpower generating plants in northern New England and a power distributing system including companies in Lawrence, Lowell, Worcester, Quincy, Fall River, Attleboro, Gardner, Webster, Southbridge, Bellows Falls, Lebanon, N. H., and Providence, where it controls the Rhode Island lighting area.

2—The Massachusetts Utilities Associates, whose 45 independent gas and electric companies are now supervised and operated by the New England Power Association. These companies serve such widely separated communities as Adams, Amesbury, Athol, Ayer, Palmer, Leominster, Clinton, Marlboro, Plymouth, North Adams, Northampton, Franklin, Ware and Weymouth, all in Massachusetts. Its capital investment is estimated at $35,000,000.

BOSTON COMPANY

3—The North Boston Lighting Properties. These are the Charles H. Tenney interests. They have gas or electric companies or both to the north of Boston in such large communities as Beverly, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Newburyport, Malden, Melrose, Medford, Everett, Salem, Revere, Winthrop; also Brockton and Springfield. The value of these holdings is roughly estimated at $50,000,000.

The definite plan on which negotiations are proceeding is for the consolidation of the two great operating companies, the New England Power Association and the North Boston Lighting Properties.

An exchange of stock would take the Tenney interests into the New England Power Association, the young, aggressive giant of the New

$35,000 Awarded Stricker in Alienation Suit

Springfield, Jan. 30—Heart balm of $35,000 was awarded today by a Superior Court jury in a sealed verdict returned for Fred E. Stricker, Springfield chemist, in his $200,000 suit against Mrs. Florence Snow Scott, for alienation of his wife, Mrs. Nona C. Stricker.

The case went to trial eight days and was given to the jury last night.

Stricker alleged that Mrs. Scott had gone on frequent trips with his wife and took up most of her time.

Testimony brought out that the women went to Europe, Bermuda, the White Mountains and to Mt. Kisco, Me., and that Mrs. Scott paid all expenses.

Stricker testified that Mrs. Scott, in 1919, persuaded Mrs. Stricker to take a separate room in the Stricker home, and in 1925 influenced her to go and live in the Scott home across the street.

Mrs. Stricker testified that her husband frequently went around the house unclad, despite her remonstrations.

Judge Walter L. Collins, in charging the jury, said testimony in the case was "hopelessly in conflict." He instructed the jurors that any liability of the defendant must rest upon whether her conduct was the controlling cause of the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Stricker, and whether the defendant's advice to Mrs. Stricker was given through "malevolent motives" or through honest opinion.

HUB SOCIETY WOMAN'S MATE ENDS LIFE

Thomas E. Cottman, Husband of Former Margaret Bennett, Suicide by Shooting

A pistol shot in the garage of her Baltimore home, and the slumped body of Thomas E. Cottman, 52, her husband, ended today the romance of Mrs. Cottman, formerly Margaret Donaldson Bennett, Boston society girl and Vincent Club member.

Cottman, prominent in social circles and president of the Baltimore shipping company bearing his name, killed himself in the garage after leaving the breakfast table apparently in good spirits.

The shooting was made his life on the eve of a party he and Mrs. Cottman had planned for two Baltimore debutantes and for which all arrangements had been made. They have no children.

He was a member of many clubs in New York and Baltimore, was a skilled horseman, and since 1922 had been president of the Baltimore Export and Import Board of Trade. He was also the city's national councillor in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

He was married to the Boston society girl in 1917, at a brilliant function, the marriage taking the eldest of the three Bennett sisters. The others are now Mrs. Edward Cunningham (Elizabeth Bennett) of Providence, and Mrs. Bulkley Livermore Wells (Helen Bennett) of New York.

Cottman was the son of J. Hough Cottman, also prominent as a sportsman and horseman.

Widowed by Suicide

MRS. THOMAS E. COTTMAN, the former Margaret Donaldson Bennett, Boston society woman, whose husband, prominent in business and social circles in Baltimore, ended his life by shooting today at their home in that city.

WIFE, TAKEN ILL, DOES NOT GO ON STAND

Last Witness Says Sullivan Told Him He Never Paid Garrett a Cent

The defense rested at the Garrett trial today.

Arguments in the case will open Monday morning.

Judge Patrick M. Keating excused the jurors until that time, again warning them to discuss the case with no one and to "hang up right away" if anyone attempted to engage them in telephone conversation about the trial.

Mrs. Florence H. Garrett did not take the stand.

The taking of evidence terminated abruptly with the testimony of a veteran Boston newspaperman that John F. Sullivan told him last summer he never paid Oliver B. Garrett a cent.

William H. McShane, 60, and a Boston newspaper reported for 30 years, was the closing witness at the trial of the former police leader, his wife, and Lillian V. Hatch on charges of conspiracy to extort from Sullivan. He also was the only witness of the day, the 18th of the trial.

The government placed no rebuttal witnesses on the stand.

MRS. GARRETT ILL

Mrs. Garrett suffered a coughing spell immediately after the opening of court this morning and was temporarily excused from the room. Upon her return McShane told his story, the jury was dismissed until 2 p. m., and then excused with Judge Keating's message of caution.

Court told the jurors:

"I will again caution you about not talking with anyone concerning this case. I will also caution you about reading anything that appears in the newspapers.

"If anyone attempts to talk this case over with you on the telephone, the better thing to do would be to hang up the receiver right away.

"The arguments in this case will begin next Monday morning and after the arguments the court will say anything that it is called upon to say."

WHAT SULLIVAN SAID.

Judge Keating then retired to his lobby with prosecution and defense counsel, who carried various documents.

McShane, who said he had been ill for a week with a cold, testified in direct examination of Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for the women.

Using gestures to illustrate his story, he told of a meeting with Sullivan which he said took place in Commonwealth ave. park, near Exeter st., last summer.

The Hotel Ritz proprietor told him he had seen the news that Garrett had been indicted and declared he did not want to go to court.

"I hope the lightning strikes me," he quoted Sullivan as saying.

McShane's story was graphic.

"There was a thunder storm coming up. We could hear the thunder in the distance and see the reflection of the lightning in the sky," he said.

TALKS OF SUICIDE.

"Sullivan said: 'What good am I? I am a perjurer and nobody

U. S. JURY IS IN FAIRFAX PROBE

The Federal Grand Jury in special session today began investigation of the collision of the Merchants & Miners liner Fairfax and the tanker Pinthis off Scituate last June, in which 50 lives were lost.

The investigation came as a surprise as the last statement by U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr in connection with the case came last August when he announced he was studying the evidence given federal steamboat inspectors at Norfolk.

Capt. Archibal H. Brooks of the Fairfax, who was exonerated by the federal inspectors of charges of excessive speed in fog, poor seamanship and negligence, was among those called before the grand jury today.

Other witnesses included members of the crew of the Fairfax and Asst. Chief Henry J. Power of the Bedton fire department, who inspected the Fairfax on its return to port following the accident.

The Fairfax caught fire in the collision and a number of passengers lost their lives, while the Pinthis sank with all its crew. After a preliminary hearing here Capt. Brooks was tried before the steamboat inspectors at Norfolk and cleared.

When questioned about the investigation, Asst. U. S. Atty. A. Chesley York said:

"The district attorney has a duty to investigate any possible offenses against the navigation laws, and that is about all I can tell you."

will believe me now. I am all done with living.'

"He made one or two other remarks. I don't remember what they were now. I remember he said: 'I turned the gas on myself six times, but no matter what I do, I can't go out.'

"I said: 'Well, John, you have told different stories before.'

"He said: 'I know it. I am a perjurer. I am going to tell the truth now, but nobody will believe me, but I want you to know, Mac, I never gave Garrett a cent.'

"I said: 'What do you mean, John, did you give it to him in bills?'

"'No, Mac, I mean I never gave Garrett anything.'

'ALLED HIMSELF PERJURER

"I said: 'You didn't perjure yourself, did you, John?' Sullivan said: 'Yes, I am a perjurer.'

"Then he said: 'I am sorry for one thing, Mac, that took place at the attorney-general's. There was a sergeant by the name of Driscoll. He put his name in the paper. I am sorry that that got out.'

"I said to him: 'Why did you let it get out the way it did?'

"Sullivan said: 'I was interrupted and then it slipped my mind before I finished. It got in the papers as if Sergt. Driscoll was at the Ritz and got money. He never got any money from me. He has been in my place four times. I wanted to give him some money, but he would not take it. He came in and out of the Hotel Ritz like a perfect gentleman. Whenever I offered him anything he refused to take it."

HE TOLD CALLAHAN

He said his meeting with Sullivan had been a casual one and that he had known Sullivan for years. One or two days after this conversation he met Herbert F. Callahan, Garrett's lawyer, and told him of it, he said.

Under cross-examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, McShane said he knew Garrett about 10 years but was not friendly with him, although they exchanged greetings. He admitted he was friendly with Lieutenant Long and Fortin of the liquor squad.

Asked why, as a reporter, he had not given the story of his meeting with Sullivan to his paper he said, 'It was very dangerous.'

DIDN'T CALL IT NEWS

He admitted he had not given the conversation with Sullivan to anyone on his paper, because "I didn't regard it as news."

He thought the time of the conversation was a Wednesday, three days after the Suffolk grand jury returned the indictments, about 1:30 or 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Doyle asked:

"Would it change your testimony in reference to the indictments if I told you Mr. Garrett was indicted on an altogether different charge than he is being tried for? I refer to the indictments charging him with conspiracy and larceny."

"I referred to the indictments of conspiracy and larceny," said McShane.

McShane admitted he had testified for Jeremiah Sheehan, formerly of the liquor squad, at a police headquarters hearing, but denied he knew Garrett was interested in that hearing.

Doyle informed the court he had no witnesses in rebuttal and Judge Keating addressed the jury:

"Gentlemen, this concludes the evidence in this case. We now call a recess."

BIG INSURANCE CO. OWNER OF 'WILD LAND'

Revelation Made at Trial of Hale in Failure of New Hampshire Bank

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 30—A New England insurance firm, with headquarters at Hartford, Ct., now owns approximately 8000 acres of Colorado "wild" lands, investment in which allegedly caused the failure of Arthur H. Hale's Merrimack River Savings Bank here, according to testimony given in the course of Hale's embezzlement trial, which resumed today in Hillsboro County Superior Court.

Cross-examining Homer Holland, county assessor in the San Luis valley district, Colorado, Defense Atty. George Warren brought out the fact that Hale was not the only Eastern financier to become interested in the Colorado tract.

On "almost worthless" sections of the land, it is charged, the Manchester bank, under Hale's direction, sunk loans amounting to more than $2,000,000.

Holland, questioned by Atty. Warren, told of large areas of "doble" land and brush land in the San Luis valley, title to which was acquired, he said, by the Travelers Insurance Company of Hartford.

Holland testified that much of the insurance company's holdings was of the same type of land as that of the Boston-Colorado firm, which Hale is accused of backing with huge sums, loaned irregularly and in consideration of more than $125,000 in fees and bonuses.

First witness to take the stand today was Charles Edman, real estate expert and loan agent of Montevista, Col.

DEMOCRATS TO PUSH VOTE ON RELIEF BILLS

Party Leaders Ready to Force Extra Session of Congress if Necessary

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Notice was served today by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, after a party conference, that the Senate Democrats would insist upon their $25,000,000 relief program to the limit of forcing an extra session of the new Congress.

The party also determined to insist upon the appropriation of 20,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat, the fund of $3,000,000 for medical supplies in the drouth area and the $5,000,000 appropriation for organization of relief corporations.

All of these proposals have been voted by the Senate, but the House has acted on none.

WILL NOT COMPROMISE

"No compromise" was the ultimatum which the Senate Democrats determined to serve.

Included also in the program was the $2,500,000 revolving fund for reloans to farmers in the flood-stricken areas of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The Senate has approved this proposal, too, but the House has not.

Notice also was given by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, that he intended to renew his fight for the $15,000,000 flood loan fund which the House rejected.

SEE EXTRA SESSION.

The measures included in the Democratic relief program have been incorporated in three separate appropriation bills—those for the Interior and War Departments, and the first deficiency measure.

Unless these bills are enacted into law before the March 4 adjournment an extra session of the new Congress is regarded as imperative.

England power world whose holdings have been enormously expanded the past few years under the leadership of President Frank Sprague.

TENNEY DUE HOME

Charles H. Tenney, nestor of the Massachusetts lighting industry, whose stride to influence in the closely settled area north of Boston has been one of the epics of New England industry, will return from a Southern trip early next week for the final negotiations.

Although the financial structure of Massachusetts Utilities Associates will remain apart from these negotiations, New England Power Association is understood to own about one-fourth its stock and to have a long-term contract for the operation of its 45 plants.

By this consolidation, control will be effected very largely over Massachusetts from the Connecticut River to the Atlantic seaboard, involving possibly two-thirds the population.

The new unit will serve that wide territory with the exception of Boston, which is served by the Edison; Lynn, which has its Independent local company; and the quarter sections to the south of Boston by Stone & Webster and the Associated Gas & Electric system. Its dominance north of Boston to the New Hampshire and Vermont lines would be practically supreme.

AIMS TO CUT RATES

This union of interests is certain, to produce the common efficiencies and economies and the improvements of service for benefit of the consumers, according to the optimistic view of its sponsors.

Ultimate reduction of rates will be among the future benefits, it was predicted.

Because of the construction of the great new dam at Fifteen Mile Falls, in New Hampshire, the New England Power Company has a surplus of power sufficient to supply entirely the communities in which the Tenney interests operate. Its power lines run down to the distributing plant at Tewksbury, adjacent to this northern territory.

Unless the union is completed, it is said that the Tenney interests will be required to construct new steam plants to meet the expanding demands for electrical energy in its present territory.

Aimee Reported on Pacific Cruise for 'Nerve Cure'

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (US)—Reports today that Aimee Semple McPherson was on board a transpacific liner in search of health and seclusion, followed developments in her latest dilemma of ermine coats and Hungarian barons.

One report was that the noted evangelist and her daughter, Roberta Semple, were sailing towards the Orient in hopes that the long sea voyage would bring back Mrs. McPherson's old vigor and restore her shattered nerves.

TALKED OF VOYAGE

Receipt of crank letters and demands for money which her attorney, W. Joseph Ford, says have been coming in numbers the past few months is said to have hastened the departure of the evangelist.

Ford and Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, nerve specialist, were non-committal when told of the reports from San Francisco that Mrs. McPherson was China-bound.

"I really do not know where she is. We discussed a sea voyage but she did not tell me where she would go," Dr. Williams said.

"LOANED" HER COAT

Ford made no new admissions regarding receipt by Mrs. McPherson of her valuable ermine coat and a letter from a mysterious "baroness" who is said to have demanded $20,000 as "back pay" for a baron-husband who was to have followed Mrs. McPherson as an evangelistical assistant.

The ermine coat arrived a day before Mrs. McPherson's departure, and only after $900 was sent to Hungary for its return. Mrs. McPherson's story to her close friends was that she had loaned the coat to a Hungarian baron to raise a temporary loan for him and that he had failed to return it.

ASIA'S WOMEN FOR REFORM

Lahore, Punjab, India, Jan. 30 (AP)—Resolutions against child marriage, polygamy, opium, alcohol, white slave traffic, child labor and another urging raising of the age of consent for girls to 16 years were passed today by the Asian Women's Congress, representing the women of a score of Oriental countries.

In the concluding session Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, released this week from Yeroda prison, Poona, where she was confined for offenses growing out of the civil disobedience campaign, was elected president of the congress as a "recognition of her services for India's advancement."

Delegates to the congress urged that in order to promote religious tolerance, love and harmony among all communities, the lives and teachings of all the great religious leaders should be taught in public schools and colleges.

John W. Davis May Be Chief Counsel for Butler at Trial in the seclusion of his home and would not talk.

Butler married Miss Ethel Conway Peters of Philadelphia in 1905. They had two sons and a daughter and his family has gone with the general wherever his varied career has taken him.

FRIENDS IN CONGRESS.

Like so many distinguished American fighters, he is of Quaker stock. His father was the late Thomas S. Butler, a representative from the Delaware-Chester district of Pennsylvania, and for many years chairman of the House naval committee.

The general has many friends in Congress, and reverberations from his pending trial may be heard on Capitol Hill.

There have been rumors since the Philadelphia speech that Butler intended to resign to accept a private position. His friends and he, himself, have scouted them.

HEFLIN HINTS APOLOGY.

In the Senate, Heflin of Alabama, said he was "getting tired of this kow-towing to the monarchs of the old world."

"Why should an American general bow down and crawl in the dust to the most red-handed tyrant on earth—Mussolini— the monarch of the old world?" he asked.

He demanded that before Butler is disciplined an investigation should be made into the truth of the statement that Mussolini ran down a child and did not stop.

"It sounds exactly like Mussolini," Heflin said.

"I stood here three years ago and related stories of Italian Masons being murdered at the instance of Mussolini. There were 127 of them in one night, if I remember correctly.

TELLS OF 'SLAUGHTER'

"They were followed to the lodges and butchered and their bodies thrown out of the windows. The grand master of the Masons in Italy was sent to prison by Mussolini and put in a dark dungeon and kept there until his eye-sight failed."

Heflin said the reason the people in Italy have not been against Mussolini is because they haven't any arms.

"Government Yellow," Butler, Jr., Note Says

"The government is too diplomatic—this is another word for yellow."

Mates of Smedley D. Butler, Jr., son of Gen. Butler and civil engineering student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, found that note today in his room at Delta Psi, Tech fraternity house.

Young Butler left for Quantico last night where his father is under arrest for his utterances against Premier Mussolini. He is on a week's leave, fraternity brothers explained.

Duce Says He Has Forgotten Butler Case

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Premier Mussolini cabled to Italian Ambassador De Martino today he had felt sure that he would obtain "just and prompt redress from the fairness, the loyalty and the friendship of the American government and the American people whose respect for the truth is well known to me," after the incident in which Gen. Butler, of the Marines, made derogatory remarks about him.

Mussolini's message said:

"I felt sure that I would obtain just and prompt redress from the fairness, the loyalty and the friendship of the American government and the American people whose respect for the truth is well known to me.

"Will you please communicate to the federal government that I consider closed the incident which for my part I have already forgotten."

Meanwhile, a protest against the arrest of Major-General Butler for his criticism of Mussolini was made in the Senate by Senator Heflin, of Alabama.

It was said at the White House today that President Hoover had taken no part in the developments presenting the note of apology sent to Italy.

Decision on Tarr Meets New Delay

Washington, Jan. 30—The anticipated announcement of the reappointment of Frederick H. Tarr as U. S. district attorney at Boston has encountered new and unexpected delay.

Though the Department of Justice denied that there had been any change of front, it was said that it might be several days and perhaps longer before the President or the attorney-general would officially make known their decision.

LONGFELLOW KIN FIGHT TO SAVE TRADITIONS OF PLAYGROUND

BOULEVARD IS OPPOSED IN CAMBRIDGE

Objectors Fear Project Would Kill Identity of Land Given City by Poet

The kin of Henry Longfellow were among 300 prominent citizens of Cambridge, many of them women, who appeared before the legislative committee on Metropolitan Affairs today in support of Representative Charles T. Cavanagh's bill to safeguard the identity and traditions of a playground willed to Cambridge by the poet.

The bill seeks to prevent construction of a highspeed motor boulevard between the Longfellow playground and the Charles river in connection with the remodelling of the river waterfront in Cambridge under an act passed last year.

MAY LOSE IDENTITY

The Cavanagh amendment would divert the proposed river roadway and carry the playground to the river edge. The parcel of two or more acres was bequeathed to the city of Cambridge as a permanent recreation ground and "breathing space" by the famous poet in 1884.

In 1921 it passed under the control of the Metropolitan Park system without adequate designation with the result that members of the Longfellow family and residents in the vicinity generally fear the playground might lose its identity in the development work under way.

KIN OF POET HEARD

Mrs. Anna Louise Thorp, daughter of the poet, was applauded when she spoke in favor of the Cavanagh amendment. She said she sincerely hoped the playground would be preserved for the purposes for which it was given.

Representative Cavanagh said nothing in years had so aroused public interest in Cambridge as the plan to avert a roadway passing between the park and the river.

Miss Louise M. Parker of Berkeley st., Cambridge, also opposed running a road between the playground and the river. Miss Emily Sibley presented a petition signed by nearly all residents in the vicinity of the playground endorsing the bill. She said that diverting the proposed road as planned in the Cavanagh bill would mean a loss of not more than six seconds to motorists over the route designated in the act adopted last year and the removal of nine trees.

Dead Man Found by Girl May Be Robber

Chicago, Jan. 30 (AP)—A 10-year-old girl, playing last night near an automobile that had stood in Lincoln ave. for two days, discovered in the rear of the car the body of a man who had been shot todeath.

The police believe he was one of the robbers shot Monday when the Weibodt department store was robbed of $19,000. The dead man was identified as George Smith, who served six months for burglary in 1916, and resembled one of the five Weibodt robbers.

'RACKETEERS' IN CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 30 (INS)—The word racketeer was applied today to quite a few members of Congress.

Representative Stone (41.), Oklahoma, charged them with being "racketeers of the payroll" by carrying their wives, daughters and other relatives on their payrolls "at high salaries when it is a well-known fact that they perform practically no labor to earn the salary."

He introduced a bill in the House which would forbid any executive, legislative, ministerial or judicial officer to appoint or vote for the appointment of any relative to a government position.

Stone said many of the 5,000,000 unemployed persons are capable of holding the government posts now held by relatives of Congressmen. He patterned his measure after a similar law which is in effect in his state.

Sperry's Crack Detector Makes Rail Travel Safer

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Alive, Elmer A. Sperry, the "iron mike" gyro wizard, made ocean travel safer. His latest discovery rises posthumously to rid railroad travel of the disasters due to "rail cancer."

Sperry died a few months ago, while trials were incomplete on his last major scientific achievement, an electrical detector of the invisible cracks in rails which have been a source of accidents since the beginning of railroading.

Harcourt C. Drake, research engineer, tells how Sperry caused an electric current to disclose the tran verse fissures within the interiors of rails, fissures which grow like living things, their presence often unrevealed by so much as an exterior scratch, until the rails fall apart.

"The most important point is that the transverse fissures are now being located before they can cause any damage," says Drake.

The boy is charged with using an automobile without authority. A companion, Walter J. Campbell, 18, of Union st., Newton Center, was sent to Concord Reformatory when found guilty of using an automobile without authority and receiving stolen property.

UNDERPASS FOR STATION URGED

Prominent Bostonians appeared before the joint legislative committee on metropolitan affairs today in favor of a bill providing for sidewalks and underpasses in the construction of the traffic circle at Cambridge and Ohnal sts.

Romney E. Spring, author of the petition, argued that such construction should necessarily be concurrent with the construction of the Elevated station which is about to begin.

H. W. Barnum, Boston Elevated counsel, registered opposition to the burden of cost of such a proposed addition. He said the Elevated trustees were not willing that the underpasses and sidewalks be part of th epresent cost of the station.

Dr. Frederick A. Washburn, director of the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, argued the need of adequate approaches to and from the subway.

He said 10,000 people go in and out of the two institutions, "the bad, the lame and the blind," and should such sidewalks and underpasses be made part of the subway, it would enable these handicapped to cross from one side of the street to the other with safety.

Barnum argued that five times as many pedestrians as hospital patients use this part of the Elevated system and the cost of the construction should be provided for in other ways.

Among others who spoke in favor of the facilitated approaches to the subway were Percy A. Atherton, James M. Hunnewell and Henry B. Kimball.

Here's a New Fish Story—and True!

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 30 (AP) Friday's fish day with a fish story by William W. Cash. Walking through the navy yard today, Cash heard a dull thud behind him. Retracing his steps, he found a four-pound pollock on the icy sidewalk. With ocean water more than a flying fish's jump away, he was puzzled to know where it had come from.

While he pondered he heard unusual noises overhead and he saw five seagulls fighting furiously. They landed and continued the battle. One of them acquitted himself like a naval strategist, however, for, while the others fought, he slyly flew away with the fish.

The two former midshipmen, Lawrence L. Myatt of Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin of Jacksonville, Fla., appeared before a naval sub-committee and described the incident as a "prank."

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, was author of the reinstatement resolution. The committee amended it to provide for their return to the academy after a two-year interval instead of one as provided in the original measure.

17 INJURED IN N. Y. FIRE; LOSS IS $1,000,000

One Man May Have Perished; $40,000 Marionettes Destroyed in Broadway

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Fire levelled a six-story building on upper Broadway early today, driving more than 200 persons into the cold, injuring 17 others and throwing the great White Way into a turmoil.

Two firemen were badly burned when the fourth floor collapsed, dropping an entire hook and ladder company to the floor below. Two newspaper photographers were hurt a block away when flashlight powder prematurely exploded, mangling the left hand of one and possibly blinding the other.

HUNDREDS ESCAPE

Tenants of 190 apartments on the upper five floors scurried to safety via elevators, fire escapes and metal bridges leading to adjoining buildings. Many of them were artists and theatrical folk.

Total loss in the fire, one of the worst in New York in 30 years, was estimated at $1,000,000.

Mrs. Sue Hastings bemoaned the destruction of 500 little wooden "men" and "women" who made up the cast of her Marionette show. The Marionettes were the collection of a lifetime and valued at $40,000.

It was feared today one life, possibly others, had been lost in the fire, but the ruins were too hot to investigate.

ONE REPORTED MISSING

One tenant told police he believed a man who lived on the fifth floor had failed to escape.

The scene was the Lincoln square building, known also as the Miller building, at 66th st. and Broadway. It houses an arcade leading to Loew's Lincoln Square Theater, in a separate structure, and shops on the ground floor. The construction is of wood and brick.

Starting on the third floor about midnight, the fire spread rapidly. Five alarms were sounded and approximately 57 per cent of fire apparatus responded.

Some 400 firemen fought the flames from every conceivable vantage point.

THOUSANDS RUSH TO SCENE.

In spite of this, the fire attacked a six-story building adjoining on the south and destroyed three floors. The theater building was not damaged, all its patrons had departed before the blaze began.

Meanwhile, Broadway was in the throes of the greatest excitement in years. Thousands flocked to the scene from all parts of the city

DE VOE JURORS COPING FALLS CENTER OF ROW FROM ROOF

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (INS)—Seven of the 12 jurors who decided Daisy De Voe was guilty of stealing a $825 coat from Clara Bow today found themselves the center of a row between the district attorney's office and Atty. William Bierne over an attempt of the latter to have them impeach their verdict.

The jurors first were induced by Bierne to go to his office where, it was learned, they discussed signing affidavits which might have resulted in Miss De Voe getting a new trial.

Learning of this move, Chief Deputy Dist.-Atty. R. P. Stwart went to Judge W. C. Doran's court and asked the jurors to come to his office. There, according to Stewart, they announced that they were not going to sign affidavits for either side.

Tribesmen Executed

Rome, Jan. 30 (AP)—Seven tribesmen were executed for treason following the capture by Italian troops last week of the town of Cufra in Tripoli, a report disclosed today.

Expansion of ice in a crevice between the top of the wall and the coping of a row of stores at 1613-1633 Cambridge st., Cambridge, is believed to be the cause of the 15-ton coping crashing to the sidewalk last night.

No persons were injured although several customers and employes were in some of the stores.

Two unidentified men escaped being crushed when they stepped into a doorway just before the heavy concrete blocks fell with a roar that was heard far away.

COMPROMISE IS SOUGHT ON BONUS

Washington, Jan. 30 (INS)—Concerning enactment before March 4 of a bill converting the soldiers bonus into cash, administration leaders today were seeking a compromise draft to overcome President Hoover's objections.

Talk of the President's spokesmen was that the bill would pass but would be vetoed if it came anywhere near "draining the Treasury."

"I think it will pass before March 4," said Senator Moses (R.) of New Hampshire, "but it certainly is running into a veto."

Leaders were known to be conferring with American Legion officials regarding a scheme whereby the bonus could be paid without the necessity for a bond issue, to which the Treasury objects. Another plan would increase the borrowing facilities for the veterans certificates.

With further hearings of the Senate finance committee deferred, probably until next week, and House hearings on numerous bills about to begin, belief spread that a compromise might result from this or from the Garner bill in the House, and one proposed by Senator Conally (D.) of Texas in the Senate, providing for cash payment of the bonus certificates on the basis of their present value.

Banker Sees Danger in Payment of Bonus

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—J. Herbert Case, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, testified to the House ways and means committee that "the mere discussion of the possibility" of a government bond issue to cover cashing veterans' compensation certificates has weakened the general bond market.

The banker warned that the program would "depreciate a considerable portion of the assets of the banks of the country" and "delay restoration of more normal conditions and fuller employment."

BAD JOHN, FEUD LEADER, DIES

Pound, Va., Jan. 30 (AP)—"Bad John" Wright, 58, who furnished the inspiration for the character "Devil Judd" Tolliver in John Fox's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," died today in his native Cumberlands, a few miles from this mountain village.

For years "Bad John" was a leading figure in the mountain feuds of this section, and later as an officer of the law, was one of the most colorful characters of the time when "the law" was pushed westward into the mountain country.

He is definitely known to have killed nine men, and the estimate ran as high as 36, but the mountaineer, while willing to tell thrilling stories of his career, never set a difinite estimate.

"Bad John" became ill many months ago and grave fears were expressed last fall. He is survived by a large number of relatives.

MASTERS SEES BIG WAR; HITS 'AGE OF IDIOCY'

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

New York, Jan. 30—"This is the age of idiocy—the age of brass and gas."

"There will be another world war within 25 years—it will be a peach."

"It is time America turned to cultivating the mind instead of its material comforts."

Edgar Lee Masters, American poet and author, in an exclusive interview with International News Service today word-pictured an America dominated by materialism and in the hands of various class interests.

SEES GREAT WAR.

"At the present time each class is trying to dig into the U. S. Treasury," he said. "If it keeps up, where is the money coming from?"

He expressed his belief that a major international conflict would develop within the next 25 years which would dwarf the World War in intensity and horror.

"Perhaps Russia may be the cause of it," he suggested.

"It is not impossible that an international prohibition incident such as the shelling of a rum-runner might involve this country in a war," he said. "Wars have been started by more silly things than that. All wars are silly."

MIDWEST HAS CHANGED.

He added:

"The Middle West has changed sharply from the days of my youth. Where once one lived simply, comfortably and enjoyably in a small community, the Middle West is now standardized."

Mitchell Refuses to Yield on Judgeship

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Attorney-General Mitchell today made public a letter he wrote Senator Schal lof Minnesota on Jan. 28 in which he reiterated his refusal to recommend Ernest Michel for a United States district judgeship in Minnesota. Mitchell said:

"I cannot myself believe that it would be anything less than a reproach upon the administration of justice to select for the high position of Federal judge a lawyer whose firm he said had solicited accident cases."

Man Draws Line on Eleven In-Laws

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 30 (AP)—Fred J. Snyder draws the line at living with his mother-in-law, father-in-law and nine brothers-in-law. Snyder, a New York Central brakeman, told about it today in Supreme Court where his wife is suing him for separation, averring he abandoned her. The husband said he was willing to make a home for her, but she refused to live apart from her family. Denying the wife temporary alimony, the justice remarked:

"If this story is true, you haven't any case."

Baltimore Shipping Man Ends His Life

Baltimore, Jan. 30 (AP)—Thomas E. Cottman, 52, prominent in business and social circles as president of the shipping company which bears his name, committed suicide today.

Mr. Cottman had breakfast with his wife and started for his office apparently in good spirits. Ten minutes later a pistol shot was heard from the garage. A servant found him with a pistol in his hand.

Woman, 59, Didn't Mean 'X's' for Kisses

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (AP)—Love letters written by a woman of 59 can be quite technical, Atty. Arthur W. Kennedy agrees.

Kennedy asked Mrs. Adelaide Pottenger Hanson, 59, Los Angeles clubwoman, in Superior court, what she meant by the "X's" and "O's" in letters to his client, Wallace J. Blanchard, 58, who was suing her for $50,000 heart balm.

"In college I learned that 'X' represents an unknown quantity," replied Mrs. Hanson. "I thought he could take them to mean whatever he wanted to."

"And the 'O's'?"

"Well, 'O' is an open letter. It can mean much or little."

"Now, Mrs. Hanson," Kennedy pursued, "didn't you mean kisses and hugs by those letters?"

"No, I thought he could take them anyway he wanted to."

Blanchard lost the suit. It was proved he had been married to Carrie E. Blanchard of Boston.

Women of the Bay State Leading in Aid to Idle

By NANCY BREWSTER

Of the work done by women in the present unemployment situation, Massachusetts women take the honors.

This is the expressed opinion of Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, vice chairman of President Hoover's committee for employment, a recent visitor here. The national leader made this known to Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, when the latter was in Washington, attending the General Federation executive board session.

Mrs. Schrader, leading Bay State clubwoman, is chairman of the Massachusetts Welfare Chest, which came under Dr. Gilbreth's scrutiny when she visited here while on a national survey tour of relief work being done by women.

The chest, collecting warm and serviceable clothing and then distributing this clothing to needy persons, is directed by excellent methods and organization, Dr. Gilbreth commented.

Mrs. John F. Sippel, president of the General Federation, in a broadcast, also paid compliment to the Bay State welfare chest.

Jackson Girl May Bride

Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson of 90 Beacon st. and Westwood announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rachel Jackson, to Winslow B. Felton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Conway Felton of Haverford, Pa.

Miss Jackson was one of the debutantes of the season of 1926-27, and was presented at a tea dance at the summer home in Westwood.

She belongs to the Junior League and the Vincent Club.

Felton is a brother of Cornelius Conway Felton of Hamilton, who married Miss Hope Gaston, daughter of Mrs. William A. Gaston and the late Col. Gaston, several years ago. He made an enviable record at Harvard as varsity quarterback and as varsity pitcher. He was the first great forward passer the Crimson had and was the eastern pioneer in the tricky science of looking to his right and then throwing a pass unerringly to his left.

He is a member of the Tennis and Racquet, A. A. A. A. D. clubs.

The wedding will take place in May.

Prints Enliven Weary Wardrobes

By ANN ARDEN

A NEW FROCK has ever been and will always be the best sort of "pick-up" to a slumping spirit in mid-winter. Its beneficial effects are more than mental, for a new frock reforms the weary aspect of a winter wardrobe, putting a gay face on it for all the world to see!

* * *

PRINTS PERFORM minor miracles. There are many women who wouldn't think of letting January come to an end without the acquisition of a print frock with definite spring style ways; they rely so much upon the figured frock for lending "motion" to a wardrobe that has become, as they interpret it, static and stupid.

* * *

SINCE SMART events to the Southward have established the rule of the collarless coat, we have noticed a new twist to the necklines of frocks. When the coat neckline is more or less devoid of trimming fur or fabric, it is inevitable that the frock which accompanies it will make a slight gesture toward elaboration.

* * *

BOTH PRINT, and attractive yoke detail, to say nothing of slender lines and ruffled sleeves, high-light the smart frock pictured. The color is green, sprinkled with groups of small flowers in yellow tones. The frock is wrap-around in front, and tied with loop and bow on left hip. The sleeves button at the wrists, and are animated by circular ruffles above the elbow. The yoke is of eyelet embroidered pale beige silk, deep in front, and slanting to left side, topped with beige flower spray.

* * *

THE HAT is of brown straw and ribbon, a rosette of beige ostrich feathers is posed at back. Brown gloves are worn; and necklace of large pearls.

* * *

HAVE YOU expressed any wonderings as to whether bordered prints would or would not be fashionably accepted this spring? Yes or no, the answer is that bordered prints will be in the fashion picture, frequently being used to give the effect of two-piece frock design. It is a dependable adage that what is good in fashion survives!

* * *

ENAMORED of embroideries, have you speculated as to their possible importance in spring fashions? The idea of hand-stitched detailing is getting on apace, what with the favor accorded embroidered fabrics at Palm Beach. Here, hand embroideries have been noted on such varied materials as batiste, organdie and georgette.

BUSINESS TOLD N. E. INDUSTRY PICKING UP

New York, Jan. 30—New England's business and industry are "picking up," and her businessmen are making the most of present opportunities and facing the future aggressively.

This was the message delivered to the National Conference of Business Paper Editors last night by Ray M. Hudson, industrial executive of the New England Council.

"At this time, several of our plants are calling men back to work; others, hitherto on part time, are increasing their working schedules," he said. "Some not only ran on full schedule throughout 1929 but had more people at work in 1930.

"Planning, budgeting, merchandising, advertising, modernizing—all are being employed more and more aggressively by New England firms to build business and thus employment, and in 'hot the line' against any surrender to recession.

"From every depression, some areas and some industries emerge stronger than ever. This has been true of New England in the past. It will be so again, and it can be directly traced to the progressive, aggressive policies put into effect during 1930.

"Textiles, shoes, automobile parts, are picking up. Our shipyards are busy, new paper mills have gone into production in Maine, and many other instances could be given which demonstrate that Yankee ingenuity, persistence and determination are still characteristic of New England.

"The period through which we are passing may be designated as that of New England's industrial renaissance. New England has great faith in the future, but realizes that faith without works is not sufficient."

He reported findings of the New England Council through its surveys, that unemployment in New England last year was less than in other major industrial areas, while agriculture and recreational business held up well, rail earnings fell off less than the country's average, and savings deposits increased.

4 Are Arrested in Robbery of Truck

New Britain, Ct., Jan. 30 (AP)—Officers of the Consolidated Motor Line, one of whose trucks was hijacked in New York on January 19, had not been notified early today of the arrest of four men in New York accused of stealing the truckload of smoking material in transit from New York to points in this State.

3 Women and Guide Dead in Avalanche

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 30 (AP) Three English women and a Swiss guide were buried in an avalanche near Eggishorn on Wednesday.

They were with a party of six tourists and three guides who left for the Aletsch glacier.

HAGERMAN AND FALL LINKED IN OIL CHARGES

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—John Collier, secretary of the American Indian Defense Society, charged at a Senate Indian committee hearing today that Herbert J. Hagerman, former territorial governor of New Mexico, was guilty of "improper conduct" in connection with Indian oil leases. Hagerman immediately challenged the statement.

The Senate recently eliminated a provision from the Interior Department bill for a salary to Hagerman as an officer of the Indian bureau. The House has disagreed and the hearing today precedes a conference.

RECALLS FALL REGIME

Collier testified Hagerman was appointed by Secretary Fall, involved in the oil scandals of the Harding administration, when Fall was "developing large designs against Indian oil lands." The witness said Hagerman proceeded to organize the Navajo Council which gave him authority to execute all leases for oil on the reservations. He said Hagerman, or Fall, or Indian Commissioner Burke "threw these properties on the market at public auction at a time of depression in values" and prices obtained were considered very low.

HAGERMAN PASSES LIE

Hagerman said Collier was "stating an untruth" in saying he was appointed by Fall.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, questioned Hagerman about the charge the oil lands had been sold to his friends.

"At that time," Hagerman said, "I knew every one who bought those leases. None was my intimate friend, however."

Ousted Mayor Drops Fight Against Jail

Indianapolis, Jan. 30 (AP)—John L. Duvall, former mayor of Indianapolis, indicated today he would abandon his fight to escape serving a 30-day sentence imposed September 22, 1927, on his conviction of violating the corrupt practices act.

Duvall was charged with promising William H. Armitage, Indianapolis politician, that Armitage could name local appointments in return for a campaign contribution.

Miami Pole-Sitter Makes New Record

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 30 (INS)—Frank Voltaire of New York for more than 46 days has been sitting atop the flagpole on Carter's pier, 100 feet above the Atlantic. That breaks Shipwreck Kelly's world record of 46 days made in Atlantic City last August.

Socialists in Plot to Kill Pilsudski

Warsaw, Jan. 30 (INS)—A Socialist move to assassinate Marshal Pilsudski had been revealed today during the trial of five alleged ringleaders of the plot.

GERMANS SEE NEW 'PERIL' IN U. S. WOMEN

By O. D. TOLISCHUS,
International News Correspondent

Berlin, Jan. 30—A new "American danger" confronts the world and has thrown civilization into the greatest crisis in history, in the view of an increasing number of European publicists.

This "danger," according to these publicists, is not so much the alleged dollar-mania of the Americans, nor their mechanical civilization, but the dominance of the American females of the species over the male.

WAR ON FEMINISM.

This dominance, characterized as being an "absolutely unique phenomenon among cultured nations," threatens to spread, these publicists warn. According to the Deutsche Zeitung, it threatens to "feminize" the entire world and therewith cause the downfall of the Occident.

The Deutsche Zeitung demands, therefore, relentless warfare against American feminism.

Furthermore, it allots Germany a new mission to save the world by the development of the German male.

Apparently this new German male is not to be exactly a superman, but he is to have a "positive attitude toward life and fate," and above all, of course, he will not bow to women.

AGAINST COMPROMISE

"Compromise is impossible," the paper exclaims.

Public attention to the so-called woman's rule in America has been aroused in Germany by a book entitled New York Without Rouge," by Dr. Garhard Venzmer, a physician.

5 NEW HUDSON LINKS URGED

New York, Jan. 30—Tentative plans for construction within 30 years of a number of vehicular tunnels and bridges across the Hudson river have been drafted by New York and New Jersey and the Port of New York Authority.

At a conference attended by Lieut.-Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, and Gov. Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey, last night, it is reported the Port Authority proposed raising $400,000,000 through bond issues to finance the projects.

On completion of the proposed tunnel from Manhattan to Weehawken, N. J., it was said, additional tubes would be constructed from the Battery, 14th street and 23rd street, and additional bridges from 57th street and from a point below the new span at 179th street.

High Tides Endanger Revere Property; State Aid Is Requested

MRS. STEPHENS

MRS. INGRAM

MRS. KIMBALL

THAT THERE IS DANGER that the high tides will cause buildings to collapse and fall to the boulevard at Revere, is pointed out by Rep. Michael F. Shaw. Revere has asked for an appropriation of $30,000 for the Metropolitan District Commission to take over the land and the buildings in Revere, on the easterly side of Endicott ave. and between that avenue and Winthrop Parkway. Among the complaining property owners is Mrs. Frank Stephens of Endicott ave., whose cellar was flooded. Others are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kimball of George ave. and Mrs. S. B. Ingram, also of George ave. The ice in the background of the picture indicates where the high tides run and where they enter the cellars of the Revere residents. (Staff photos.)

BECK ATTACKS TAX SYSTEM

The unfair workings of the 16th amendment have created a crisis comparable to that which arose prior to the Civil War, Congressman James M. Beck of Pennsylvania warned members of the Massachusetts Bankers' Association last night at the annual banquet of the association at the Copley-Plaza.

In a resume of the early days of the republic, Representative Beck attempted to prove that the constitution had the power to impose a direct tax on the states in proportion to their population.

He pointed out that the 16th amendment imposed an income tax in proportion to their representation in Congress. This amendment destroyed the cornerstone of the constitution with regard to an equitable distribution of the cost of government, he said.

"Last year the federal government distributed in federal aid to Senator Borah's State of Idaho $1,315,000, more than 150 per cent of all moneys which that State has paid into the federal treasury," he said.

"Massachusetts received $3,684,000 federal aid, although it contributed $115,000,000, which is 3 per cent of what it received. This same result is noted in New York, which only received .94 per cent of the $228,000,000 which it paid into the treasury."

Health Council Meeting Today

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Central Health Council will be held at the Twentieth Century Club, 3 Joy St. today. "Pending Health Legislation," "Report of the Commission on the Revision of Laws Relating to Children" and "Opportunities for Progress in the Public Health Field" are the topics on the program for discussion. Dr. George H. Bigelow, Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler and Theodore Lothrop will be speakers. Dr. LeRoy M. S. Miner, Dean of Harvard Dental School and president of the council will preside.

Medford Democrats Re-Elect Novellino

At the annual meeting of the Medford Democratic city committee Anthony F. R. Novellino was re-elected chairman and John F. Leary was chosen vice-chairman. Mrs. Agnes McCarthy was elected secretary and John J. Dwyer treasurer. The committee plans to remain active throughout the year instead of just prior to election.

Slitcher Praises Co-operative Plan

Montreal, Jan. 30—The Canadian National Railways plan of co-operative management between officers and workers is lifting men and management to a higher plane, Prof. S. H. Slitcher of Harvard said last night at a dinner attended by officials of the road and representatives of the employes.

Prof. Slitcher has been studying co-operative plans on a number of railroads and declares that on none does it work out so well as on the Canadian National.

Martha Gives Valentine Day Tips

MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WLEX.

Going to have a Valentine party? Better had, if you want some real fun at moderate expense. It's a good way to repay those luncheons and other social debts that pile up so fast at this time of year. And it's real fun to prepare for a Valentine party.

Martha Lee

First, the invitations should be large, pink, cardboard hearts, on one side of which has been printed this doggerel:

"Come to my party
On Valentine's Day
"We'll all hit the trail
On Dan Cupid's Way."

A picture of Cupid with an arrow, either drawn or cut from something, should be pasted on one "tip" of the pink heart, pointing directly at the doggerel. Only half of Cupid should be securely pasted, and under the other half written the name and address of the hostess and the time of assemblage. On the other half of the heart should be drawn in ingenious map fashion the TRAIL OF LOVE with fine lines running to such stations as True Love, Lovers' Paradise, Lotus Island, Heaven, Mount Enchantment, Valley of Delight, or any other names you can think of. These names should be translated to signs which are hung everywhere about the house. These may be made of white or pink cardboard and printed with black ink. At each of these points games are played, some for the whole crowd and some for two players at a time.

GAME OF HEARTS

A good game is to cut up as many cardboard hearts as you have guests into zigzag puzzle pieces, give each guest a heart, and a prize to the one who assembles his in the shortest time. Making a comic and a serious valentine is another good task.

Give each guest a magazine, or part of one, two good sized sheets of smooth cardboard, put paste pot and scissors on each table, and have him make a comic and a serious valentine, and write an appropriate rhyme for each. The best one gets a prize, and the maker of the one which is voted the poorest may pay a forfeit.

Of course your menu must be red and white. Here is a simple but delicious one. Serves for eight.

Just Follow This Recipe

The picture decorating today's column is shown you merely as a sample of the hundreds of delicious concoctions that can be prepared with Mueller's macaroni and spaghetti, and just the sort of recipe that might win a prize for you in the $100 cash contest described elsewhere on this page. This is macaroni combined with lamb or beef kidneys and cooked in the casserole with a blanket of bread crumbs and some cheese sauce. Here is the recipe:

ELBOW MACARONI AND KIDNEY

1 pkg. Mueller's elbow macaroni
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
2 cups milk
1 cup diced Swiss cheese
1 tbsp. parsley chopped
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup kidney (lamb or beef, cooked)
Buttered bread crumbs

Parboil the elbow macaroni for seven minutes in four quarts rapidly boiling water to which one tablespoonful salt has been added. Drain. Melt the butter in a double boiler, stir in the flour, add the milk and cook until it thickens, then stir in the cheese. Add the parsley and cook until well blended. Add the seasonings. Into a well greased baking dish put alternate layers of macaroni, kidney and sauce, finishing with the macaroni. Cover with bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Sweetbreads may be substituted for the kidney if desired.

GOOD POLISHERS

KEEP THE wax-coated boxes in which crackers are packed. They make excellent polishers for irons instead of the little blocks of paraffin wax generally used.—M. J. Hirth, 158 Park st., New Bedford.

A Dish Fit for the Queen

THIS DELICIOUS macaroni and kidney casserole shows versatility of macaroni. It combines economy and nutrition to the queen's taste.

Chance to Capitalize on Your Macaroni Recipes

The second big macaroni and spaghetti contest is underway, offered by the Mueller Company, which we told you about in Monday's Boston Evening American. If you use macaroni or spaghetti at all you are sure to have dozens of different dishes combined from experiments with meats, cheese or eggs and macaroni and spaghetti—even as salads or desserts. As you know, the Mueller Company is offering $100 in cash for recipes submitted and you have only until the 14th of February to enter your choicest recipes in the contest.

In addition to these generous prizes, the Mueller Company will send free to everyone who submits a recipe one of the Mueller macaroni and spaghetti timers which they value at $1.

SEND IN BEST RECIPES

The rules are printed again today, so read them over carefully and then send in your best recipes to the Macaroni Contest Editor, care Martha Lee, at 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, and who knows but you may be one of the lucky winners of a prize. CONTEST RULES

1. Each contestant may submit as many recipes as she wishes, calling for macaroni or spaghetti.

2. A part of the wrapper of a Mueller package must be enclosed with your recipe.

3. Write on one side of the paper only. Be sure your name and address are on each sheet of paper you submit. This is important.

Our Round Table Recipes

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published each Saturday for the best contributions chosen from those printed in this column during the week. The household suggestions may include not only recipes, but any sort of helpful hints for housewives—economical cookery or housekeeping in any of its forms.

PARKER HOUSE CORN ROLLS

1¼ cups flour
¾ cup cornmeal
2 eggs
Milk to mix
2 tbsps. shortening
½ tsp. salt
4 tsps. baking powder

Mix as you would biscuit, cut with biscuit cutter, spread half with butter or shortening. Fold over like Parker House rolls and bake in quick oven.—Mrs. E. M. Kingsbury, P. O. Box 68, East Derry, N. H.

KEEP THE wax-coated boxes in which crackers are packed; they make excellent polishers for irons instead of the little blocks of paraffins wax generally used.

SOOTHING THE SYRUP

If the syrup insists upon dripping from the lip of the pitcher or container, a tiny smear of butter placed at the pitcher's mouth will prevent it from doing so.

In measuring syrup into your cakes, cookies and the like, dip the cup in cornstarch and pour it out again, leaving a thin film inside. Then measure the syrup and you will find it runs out of the cup very readily.

TAGORE WARNS INDIA ON HASTY ACCEPTANCE

Bombay, India, Jan. 30 (AP)—Rabindranath Tagore, Indian poet, some today from a tour of the United States, warned India against a too hasty acceptance of Ramsay MacDonald's proposals for self government, asserting that whatever form such a government may take it cannot immediately remove India's problems.

"There is a grave danger," he said, "that India will assume it has attained its object when some machinery of self-government is offered.

While Mahatma Gandhi and other leaders of the Congress party examined Ramsay MacDonald's Indian proposals with a view to finding a basis for peace negotiations, the official newspaper of the party today printed a violent editorial charging that India "must make sedition our national religion."

Characterizing MacDonald's speech at the round table conference as a bogus peace gesture, the paper asserted that resistance to British rule must be continued with renewed zeal.

"Only so long as we stand firmly against whatever comes will our enemies realize that our determination to be free is too strong to be deflected by overtures from any quarter unless those who bring them come submissively, prepared to accept Gandhi's demands as a basis for negotiations," the editorial said.

POWER BOARD IS UPHELD

Washington, Jan. 30 (US)—The Federal Power Commission's authority to investigate accounts of power-site licenses and squeeze the water from their capital, has been upheld by the District Supreme Court here in the first test case on the subject.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday denied the petition of the Clarion River Power Co. for an injunction to restrain the commission from probing the company's alleged investment of $13,000,000 in the Piney project in Pennsylvania.

The commission claims the legitimate investment in the project was only $4,500,000. The alleged water includes the famous "$144 needle item" which, listed as expenses, caused considerable stir in recent hearings.

'Spring' Hits Midwest and Violets'll Bloom Soon

Chicago, Jan. 30 (AP)—The calendar has been saying it's January right along for the past month. But it has looked and felt more like spring in the Middle West.

C. A. Donnell, chief of the Weather Bureau, reported that he had received information that peach trees were blooming in southern Illinois, and from Iawe reports came that dandelions were in flower.

The "heat wave" appeared to be general in the middlewest. In the North Platte Valley of Nebraska one may see violet plants in the open fields. The temperature at Scotts Bluff yesterday reached 68 degrees, a high record for January. Chicago's highest was 46.

Meanwhile the cry for moisture in the Middle-West grows louder.

"If we don't get snow or rain in a few weeks, all the spring rainfall will not save the Middle-West from distressing conditions when time comes for planting corn and other crops," said H. W. Wheeler, a farm adviser at the agricultural convention in Springfield, Ill.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

With substantial groups in the Port of Boston lined up as favorable and opposed, the Boston Port differential case, brought by the Boston Port Authority and the City of Boston to enable this port to compete with other ports by a change in rates, will reopen before the Interstate Commerce Commission Examiners at the Chamber of Commerce library, Monday, at 10 o'clock.

Preparations have been completed by the local interests to carry the case, which was suspended at a previous calling, through to a finish. It will take a week or more.

Special Counsel Johnston Campbell, who represents the Boston Port Authority and is associated with Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman in representing the City of Boston, is a former chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, before whom the case is being heard.

Lined up at the side of the Boston Port Authority in its fight is the Maritime Association of the Chamber of Commerce and the Foreign Commerce Club.

HUNDREDS SEND IN NAMES FOR NEW TUNNEL

The Tunnel Editor didn't know there could be so many names for a traffic tunnel until his mail set him right today.

Hundreds of readers continued to send in their suggestions toward a name for the $16,000,000 project that will connect Boston proper and East Boston, one enthusiast suggesting "Boston's Depression" in view of the men it will put to work.

More practical names are urged, however, and out of the heavy mail may come the suggestion of some reader that will be handed down to posterity as the official name of the big improvement.

Mayor James M. Curley and the memory of his late son, James M Curley, Jr., continued today in the majority of suggestions received for a fitting name.

LONG FAVORS CURLEY NAME

Two of the leading proponents to honor the mayor and his family were William P. Long, park commissioner, and James A. Sweeney, sealer of weights and measures.

Both suggested that the tunnel be named after James M. Curley, Jr., "as a tribute to the memory of Mayor Curley's son and a tribute to the many years of faithful service his father has given the city."

Edward Jackson Curley, of Dorchester, prominent in tercentenary affairs last summer, suggested it be named for the late John H. L. Noyes, former city official and member of an old East Boston family.

Other suggestions today were: Hub Tunnel by Miss M. S. Hill, of 97 Irving st., Everett; Boston Commercial Tunnel, by Frank J. Griffiths, of 1260 Dorchester ave., Dorchester; Underharbor Tunnel, by Miss Emily Bellveau, of 34 Stearns st., Malden. The Calvin Coolidge Tunnel, by Jane Corbin, of 74 Warren st., West Medford; Marshal Ferdinand Foch Tunnel, by James J. Phelan, of 53 Aspinwall rd., Dorchester Boston Underseas Highway, by George J. Rowe, of 10 Lexington ave., Hyde Park; Northern Underway, by Charles E. Benton, of 145 Milk st., Boston.

BATES NAME SUGGESTED

Thomas A. Niland, East Boston, sponsored the name of former Governor John L. Bates in recognition of his work for East Boston 30 years ago.

Jennie Stone Abrams, of 2 Pope st., Jamaicaway, suggested the name Harbor Tunnel, and Henry Tschudy, of 71 Foster st., New Bedford, thought the heroism of Admiral Richard E. Byrd should be recognized by naming the tunnel for him.

Gen Edwards, the Boston Airport, Col Lindbergh and a variety of combinations of the names Cross st. and Meridian st, the terminals of the new tunnel were also submitted.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

Have a try at it yourself. Your suggestion is as good as the next, and all you must do is fill out the blank printed elsewhere in this edition.

Address it to the Tunnel Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

NAME NEW TUNNEL

Baldwin-Churchill Fight Splits Tories

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—The birth of a new faction within the Conservative party was seen today as the probable result of the disagreement on Indian policy between Stanley Baldwin and Winston Churchill. From correspondence just published it appears Churchill, while has "warm, personal friendship for Mr Baldwin is undiminished, thinks it best he should abstain from meetings of the party's business committee.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green ALL-BRAN package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BRADY GUILTY IN BOMBING

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (US)—Leroy Brady, 25-year-old Washington auto mechanic, last night was convicted of second degree murder by a jury in Anne Arundel county court here in connection with the triple bomb slaying of his brother's wife Naomi Hall Brady, and her small brother and sister, at Seat Pleasant, Md., on New Year's Day of 1930.

Mrs. Brady, her 4-year-old sister, Dorothy, and baby brother, Samuel, all lost their lives when the bomb, wrapped as a gift package, exploded in the Hall home as she opened the box.

Guards Win, but Lose in Rum Boat Race

New York, Jan. 30 (US)—In an official test of speed between the good ship C. G.-145 and the bad ship Josephine K, today, the good ship won. The victory was a deep disappointment to Boatswain Carl Schmidt and the crew of the winning craft.

They were hoping to lose the race against time because that would prove the Coast Guard boat 145 to be slower and thus vindicate Boatswain Schmidt's judgement in shelling the Josephine K and killing her skipper, William Cluett, a Canadian rum runner.

But over a plotted course of three sea miles, between Old Orchard and West Bank Lights the Josephine K registered 936 miles, and the 145 1115 miles an hour, average speed.

Each boat was driven both ways over the course, laden and manned in the same fashion that obtained on Saturday when Schmidt fired the shell that killed Capt. Cluett and started an international inquiry.

Boatswain Schmidt commanded the 145, a crew of his associates manned the Josephine K and the board of inquiry investigating the episode rode on each vessel in turn to be sure every ounce of speed was extracted from them.

Worthless sea water was substituted on the Josephine K for the precious cargo of spirits she carried when pursued.

After the test the board announced its report would be forwarded to Washington. The boats were raced at the suggestion of Gerald Campbell, British consul-general, representing the Canadian government in the inquiry.

He raised the question of whether the 145 might not have overhauled and captured the fleeing rumrunner without recourse to gunplay. This came after the boatswain testified that the Josephine K. was gaining when he fired.

"To the Last Man" Order Finally Stems Foe's Rush

GERMANS HALTED AFTER TEN DAYS OF FIGHTING

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Armies During the Closing Years of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott

MY DAYS in the BATTLE IN FLANDERS had made clear to me that operations on the Yser front were completely subordinated to those which were being carried on in the Lys region. Everything in the Lys zone depended only by a few regiments of territorials, some cavalry and scattered British units, which, after the battles of Ypres, had taken up positions on the right bank of the Yser and Canal de Loo. But the East Indian troops, which, coming from Flanders, had been sent to the Somme, were replaced by the Lahore Division, sent to the same zone from the French First Army. The second Division, which had been landed in the French Ninth Corps, was [illegible] to the north and [illegible] delaying [illegible] to these reinforcements, see that they arrived [illegible] the protection of the operations [illegible] their action.

As the battle in Picardy and Artois became more and more stabilized, a new series of events opened north of the Lys. Here was to be found the only ground now left where the Germans could seek to outstrip us, surprise us in the midst of our preparations and crush us with the weight of their powerfully armed masses.

It was their last chance of winning the battle on the western front, which so far had gone against them, and of carrying out their original plan of bringing the war to a victorious conclusion in the west before proceeding to end it in the east.

Lloyd George
Foch Meets English Leader

It was to be anticipated that, if left unhampered in their movements, the Germans would put forth an exceptionally powerful effort, accordingly, we once more tried to forestall them by seizing the initiative ourselves. As it turned out, we did not succeed, but we broke their plan completely and definitely, and thereby inflicted upon them a serious check.

On October 17 I went to the headquarters of the Tenth Army at Saint-Pol to settle various details and more especially to meet Mr. Lloyd George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was making a tour of our front with his friend, Lord Reading. This was my first meeting with this statesman destined later on to become one of the leading actors in the war.

That first impression he gave was that of a man of rare vivacity and a most uncommon quickness of mind. This impression was strengthened and prolonged by the breadth of his views, the diversity of the subjects he discussed and the fertility of the solutions he advanced.

The French officer charged with accompanying him had lost sight of him that morning during a halt at Montdidier. When he found him he was standing in front of the statue of Parmentier and, as the officer approached, he exclaimed:

"There was what you would call a great man!"

Our talk at Saint-Pol naturally dealt with the situation of the Allied armies and the barrier to the invasion which we had established up to the Lys and which we were trying to extend to the sea. I told him that I had decided to dig the troops in, and by that means hold fast against the enemy's superior armament until such time as we ourselves should become just as powerfully equipped.

Then we would take the offensive, for in no other way could victory be won. On many occasions since that day Mr. Lloyd George has reminded me of this conversation, which he dubbed "The Saint-Pol program" and of which he saw the fulfilment.

It was under these conditions that one of the most important encounters of the war was to take place. The Allies were still seeking to profit by the initiative and the freedom of action which their victory of the Marne had given them, forestall the enemy's offensive and attack him before he could exploit his success at Antwerp by adding the forces there liberated to powerful reserves on the only ground where it remained possible to decide by maneuver the war on the western front.

The question I had to ask myself was this: Would we have time to assemble the scattered and heterogenous forces of three Allied Powers in sufficient numbers and well enough organized to make a combined effort to block the enemy's plan and retain that direction of events to which our victory entitled us.

If we could not expect this much, could we not at least arrest the full development of his plans? This question would be answered by the terrific encounter known as the battle of Flanders. It comprised two distinct periods:

(1) The attack along the coast, or the battle of the Yser; October 17 to November 1;

(2) The battle of Ypres, the principal center of communications of the Flanders region; October 21 to November 12.

In the direction of Dunkirk the map showed not even any high ground, woods or localities susceptible of being used as point of support, much less any line or river capable of being organized and defended. But a decision had to be made without delay if too large a retirement with decisive consequences was to be prevented, and my thoughts centered on the line of the railway between Nieuport and Dixmude.

Belgian Defense
End of the Retreat Mapped Out

This railway offered at least a continuous line, actually traced on the ground and which the troops in their retreat would have to cross and where they might be stopped. It was therefore an easy base on which to rally and form a new line of battle.

A railway often runs through cuts or on embankments, even on level ground the ballast alone affords some shelter to a firing line. I therefore assumed that this road would give a little protection to the troops forming up behind it. Moreover, its extremities rested firmly upon Nieuport and Dixmude at either end and, therefore, it might present a defensive line of considerable value.

Such were the brief but vital reflections which I exchanged — without knowing much more about the matter — with the Belgian staff, and by virtue of which it was decided that the Belgian Army would bring its retreat to an end on this line and take up a defensive position behind it.

On the north at Nieuport, it would be strongly held by a brigade of the Forty-second Division; in the center, toward Pervyse, by the other brigade of this division; and at Dixmude by the brigade of marines.

It turned out that the line ran along an embankment from three and one-half to four and one-half feet above the level of the plain. Why should we not then try to flood the shores of the Yser here as had been successfully managed in the west around Dunkirk?

If this were done the strip of ground one or two miles wide which lay between the river and the railway would be denied to the enemy, while the water would be checked at the embankment; the latter, moreover, would afford some protection for the troops.

At all events, in the confusion which always accompanies a withdrawal under heavy fire, what is essential to have is a continuous line traced on the ground. And turn shes a base upon which the troops can rally and reorganize, and the men respond willingly if the terrain is ever so little favorable. The railway rendered us this service which the inundations completed.

And so, when I left Furnes on the evening of the 24th, it had been arranged with the Belgian staff that the retreat would be stopped and a defensive position established along the railway track. It was also agreed with the Belgian staff that, notwithstanding the serious damage which the sea water would cause to this beautifully cultivated country for a long time to come, the inundation would be effected.

As for General Grossetti, he sent me from his command post at Pervyse the following unequivocable message:

'I don't know how much will be left tomorrow of the Forty-second Division, but so long as one man remains the Germans will not cross the railroad.'

Once more we were about to offer battle with exhausted troops. This time it was along the Nieuport-Dixmude line. It is true that its defense was greatly strengthened at the two extremities by the presence of French detachments, as well as by General Grossetti's force in the center, at Pervyse; it was also soon to be protected by flooding the approaches.

Germans Fail
Desperate Resistance Halts Advance

The key to the inundations were the locks at Nieuport, and these we firmly held, but the question was how long would it take the floods to spread and what extent of ground would they cover. There was nothing in previous experience which could answer these questions, for the hydraulic system which had been designed with the object of defending the country from the sea was now about to be called upon to let that sea in upon the very ground it was devised to protect. Uncertainty on this point continued till the very end, with a corresponding effect upon the defense.

On the 25th the Belgian Army was in line along the embankment. On the 26th the German bombardment was renewed with intense violence. It reached the railway and again spread disquietude among its defenders. However, they put much reliance upon the rising inundation.

On the evening of the 5th the Belgian staff informed Admiral Ronarc'h at Dixmude that all arrangements had been made "to flood the left bank of the Yser between the river and the line of the Dixmude-Nieuport railway." Special measures had to be taken to prevent the water from reaching our troops, dam the culverts passing under the track and make them watertight, as well as cut the banks of certain canals so as to let the sea water in.

It was only on the evening of the 27th that all this work was finished, then at flood tide, the Nieuport locks were opened. They were shut again at low tide and this maneuver went on every day. On the 28th the water had reached the railway, in the vicinity of Pervyse, and spread south; this, however, did not stop the enemy's advance or make him modify his plan. Thus he delivered on the 29th a succession of violent attacks in the direction of Ramscapelle, but he did not succeed in entering that village.

Town Retaken
Route to the Coast Is Closed

On the morning of the 30th, seeing that the water had gained his rear, he made a supreme effort, captured Ramscapelle and reached solid ground. If he could hold on to this place and succeed in debouching from it, the ground behind the inundations would lie open to him, the railway embankment and our whole system of defense would be turned and carried. It was, therefore, necessary at all costs to recapture Ramscapelle.

General Grossetti saw that immediately and gave the necessary orders. The attack was carried out by Zouaves, Chasseurs a pied and Senegalese, together with some Belgian elements and the village, before nightfall, was reoccupied.

On the following day, the 31st, the line of defense was completely reconstituted along the railway, the water in front of us continued to deepen, and except at a few points the enemy retired beyond the Yser. The system of locks which controlled the inundations was at Nieuport, and we were in firm possession of this town.

At the other end of the railway, at Dixmude, our marines were putting up a stubborn resistance. From this moment on that part of the left bank of the Yser, lying between these two places, was forbidden ground to the German Army. The route along the coast toward Dunkirk and Calais was closed.

The battle had lasted more than 10 days. It had been characterized on the part of the Germans by an intensity of artillery fire of all calibers hitherto unheard of. Their infantry had shown itself full of enthusiasm. Leaving out of account his powerful artillery, the enemy had used in this attack the Third Reserve Corps, Twenty-second Reserve Corps, one Ersatz division and one Landwehr brigade.

The Belgian Army had put in its six divisions, we had engaged our Forty-second Division and our brigade of marines.

The German efforts had ended in complete failure.

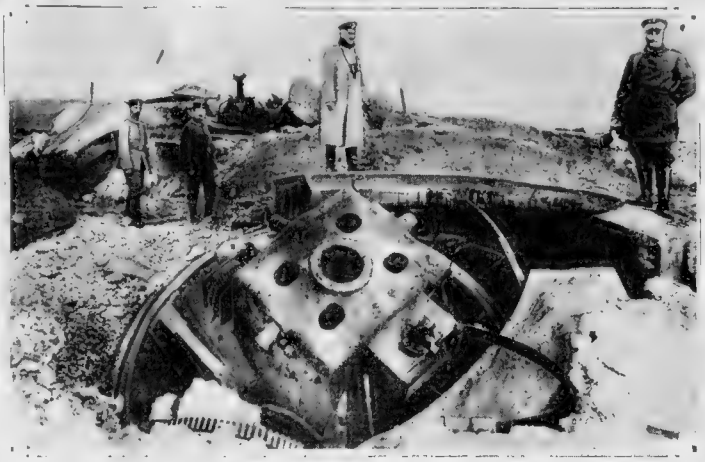
In tomorrow's instalment in the Boston Evening American, Marshal Foch tells of the battle of Ypres.

Mightiest of Belgian Forts Silenced by German Siege Guns



BATTERED APART. One of the most serious blows to the morale of the gallant Belgian army and civilian populations occurred when the forts at Namur, considered impregnable by military experts, were shattered by the mighty siege guns of the German army as it steam-rollered its way across Belgium and into northern France. This picture shows the devastating effect of the German shells after the forts were bombarded for several days.

GEORGE ARLISS GIVEN TITLE ROLE IN 'ALEXANDER HAMILTON' FILM

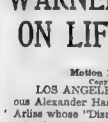
WARNERS SEEKING DATA ON LIFE OF STATESMAN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30—The charming, cultured, fastidious Alexander Hamilton will live again on the screen. George Arliss whose "Disraeli" has become a classic, will now turn his attention to America's "Disraeli," one of the early statesmen. The idea has so captivated everyone on the Warner lot that instead of "The Devil," the life of Alexander Hamilton will be George Arliss' next production.

Jack Warner, who has been sick with the flu for a week, is now going to Palm Springs to recuperate, gave his approval to the plans before he left town. Darryl Zanuck has put several well known writers to work getting all the data on Hamilton's life.

Hamilton was a resident of George Washington, but he put several brilliant and politically-able friends in office. Many tales are told of his friendship with the Father of His Country. Maybe they ought to call Ruport Hughes in to consult as the doctor knows as much about George Washington as any American. Gertrude Atherton also wrote an amazingly good story called "The Conqueror," based on the life of Hamilton.



Louella O. Parsons

THE MOST surprising story of the year is Winfield Sheehan was undoubtedly the oft-repeated yarn that he had resigned. Winnie holds a contract for five years with the Fox company, made immediately after the resignation of William Fox and the election of Harley Clark as president. Plans for months ahead have also been made by Mr. Sheehan. In fact, Winnie didn't know a thing about his resignation until someone called his attention to it in one of the newspapers. The rumor undoubtedly came from New York.

NATALIE MOORHEAD, statuesque blonde, who is at this moment vieing with Lilyan Tashman as filmland's most colorful screen vamp, is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Miss Moorhead plays one of the principal roles in John Gilbert's next picture, "Great Rebel." That reminds me that John Robertson, who is now back on the lot assembling his cast, has chosen Jean Hersholt for one of the leading roles. Looks as if John is going to be given good support. Glad no amateurs are to be in this Gilbert picture. No mad-le how a man or woman rates in another field of endeavor few of them can actually face the camera with ease. Too self-conscious, if you know what I am driving at.

NEW YORK anxiously awaited reports on how Hollywood received "Once in a Lifetime" a broad satire on her own celebrities. The whole thing was an amusing and only burlesqued that the movie. It loved it. I hear, never heard louder laughter in a theater. Everyone was there, not only because the play has been so much publicized, but because Sid Grauman, who is immensely popular, was making his debut as a stage impresario. Paul Bern tells the funniest yarn of all. He overheard one woman say to another, "Of course, New York took this play literally but we know it is satire." Jesse Lasky's guffaws could be heard all over the theater. Gloria Swanson sat in a front seat and heard her name mentioned several times. "Pop" Warner, father of the Warner brothers, told me confidentially that he suspected the 12 Silmken boys might be his sons, "Only, ah sigh," he added proudly, "the only reason they are like my boys is because they danced and sang like champions." Irving Thalberg and Al Kaufman joined in the merriment as did dozens of other executives, directors and stars.

I MET Carl Laemmle, Jr. at the opening of "Once in a Lifetime." He, like all film people, had gathered in the lobby between the acts to discuss this satirical comedy. He whispered to me that Jean Arthur had been engaged for "The Virtuous Husband." I had to confess that was a new title to me until he told me "Apron Strings" had now become "The Virtuous Husband." Didn't I tell you the husband and wife titles were getting a break? J. C. Jugent and Tully Marshall are also in the picture, with Betty Compson and Elliott Nugent playing the male lead.

Harry's first greeting to me was "Blumenthal hasn't enough money to buy Columbia. Besides it isn't for sale."

MARY GARDEN IN DEBUSSY OPERA

By MOSES SMITH

DEBUSSY'S "Pelleas et Melisande," the presentation of which has become an almost annual occasion in Boston, was performed by the Chicago Opera Company at the Boston Opera House last night.

Two of the central protagonists of this exquisite melange of Debussy and Maeterlinck were different from those of the last production which the Chicagoans have given here in the past few years. Neither the conductor (who for some persons at the opera is merely one of the "hired men") was no longer Polacco but Emil Cooper. In our opinion he adopted a scale of dynamic values for the marvelous orchestration out of proportion with the singers. As a result the latter could often not be heard well. Mr. Cooper's conception of the score, which was logical and clearly sustained, seemed to us too brusque, too brutal for the quasi-exotic music of Debussy.

• • •

THE OTHER principal change was the first appearance here of Barre Hill as Pelleas, played here several times by Mr. Mojica. As he sang and acted the role last night Mr. Hill was still apparently on a tentative basis, not so imbued with the character and music as to make his expression seem inevitable. He sang in a pleasant voice, not overly distinctive in character, and his work on the whole was of the same general level—good for the most part, never exceptional, occasionally awkward.

For the rest, there was Mary Garden, familiar as Melisande. If her work last night did not achieve the perfect illusion she has summoned in the past, it was still good enough to cause the onlooker to marvel at that feminine fountain of youth; and to wonder also at the sincerity with which she invests her characterization of Melisande while in so many other roles she is an opera star on parade.

• • •

THERE WAS the prodigious Vanni-Marcoux as Golaud, the finest artist in last night's performance. His characterization once again have believed possible. Edouard Cotreuil as a well-studied and sympathic Arkel, Maria Cleesens as Genevieve and Helen Freund as Yniold rounded out the cast ably. The scenery was just one year older—and shabbier than it was last year.

The audience, which did not quite fill the house, was very enthusiastic, recalling the performers for many curtain calls.

Zelda Santley, singing original songs and impersonating prominent favorites; Charles Senna and Helen Dean, in a comedy skit called "Charlie's Night Out"; the fast-stepping dance team of Wilson, Keppel and Betty, and Doris Girton and company in a whirlwind offering, are others on the Keith-Boston program.

BENNY MEROFF SCORES HIT AT MET

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

DRAGONS ARE SUPPOSED to be naughty beasts, good for badness only, if one can be good for anything bad. But a certain dragon is an exception; lifting pride his upper jaw on the stage of the Metropolitan, he reveals Benny Meroff and forthwith spills him upon the stage, to remain as master of ceremonies for an indefinite George Bancroft period. In short order Mr. Meroff had his audience all by its ears, capturing their eyes and captivating their hearts, so that the bad old dragon seems to have vanished after all. Coming after the inglorious feature film, "Scandal Sheet," the dragon's act proved all the more welcome, as it ushered in talent and life and colorfulness, and a new source personality hereabouts.

Though hitherto unknown in the East, Mr. Meroff quickly made thousands of friends. He is so gifted he may be termed a "one man band," and a "one man show," if need be. He is musical, being able to play a whole family of saxophones of assorted sizes; and no end of instruments besides. He is so agile he could earn a golden wage as a dancer over any vaudeville circuit. He does other stunts, too.

"SCANDAL SHEET" is about the world's worst newspaper pic-

CHAPLIN FILM 3 YEARS IN MAKING

Charles Spencer Chaplin, declaring flatly that he regards the talking picture as an inferior medium of screen entertainment to the silent film, backs his opinion with $1,500,000 of his own money, 800,000 feet of film footages, three years of his time, and a motion picture, comedy entitled "City Lights."

Although "City Lights" is synchronized with sound effects and with music composed in the main by Mr. Chaplin, the human voice is not heard at any time. It is the comedian's contention that dialogue limits the field of expression and, being primarily a pantomime artist, he regards silence as the best medium for him and the character he portrays.

Chaplin has employed sound as an integral part of his humor in "City Lights," his one concession to the new medium. Sound effects in several instances, such as one in which he swallows a whistle, are used for definite comic result.

ture. It has a slow start, and a long one with, and is so poorly constructed, and so untrue to newspaper life that it has no value as a photodrama and would merit attention only as an attempt to travesty "gentlemen of the press." It is a shamefully weak if intended as a photoplay; for one thing it trails its climax with a sequence that arouses only laughter at intended pathos.

This is all unfortunate, for the cast has George Bancroft, Kay Francis and Clive Brook. There are times when they seem to be rising above their vehicle.

IN ADDITION to the excellent revue and the clever Mr. Meroff, the Metropolitan has a variety of good "sheets," plus superb playing by the Grand Orchestra under Mr. Geissler, and organ selections by Mr. Martel and Miss Newcombe.

TIBBETT NOW ON STATE SCREEN

Taking the basic ideas of a successful stage production and embellishing them with the added grandeur and spectacle made possible by the wide scope of the screen sometimes necessitates startling changes, even though the fundamental plot is retained. And so those who saw the show "New Moon" will find new sweep in the picture version, which co-stars Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore, opening today at Loew's State. Natural settings, spectacular locations, crowds and other important features which are not possible within the limitations of the stage can be used to advantage on the screen.

Lawrence Tibbett

In "New Moon," the action is shifted to Turkestan, resulting in a picturesque background. New color is added by the semi-barbaric costumes of the land, the unusual appearing and strange habits of the natives. The adventures in strange places give rise to thrilling situations. To the beautiful music of the original stage show are added two new Herbert Stothart compositions.

Mayor Curley Praised for Unselfish Work

Editor Boston American:

Citizens of Boston have every good reason to be thankful for their great mayor. His unselfish and intelligent handling of the problems coming before him during his term of office, and especially for immediate action because of the need of our people, his journey to Washington in order to point out advantages to be derived from extending our airport facilities to Governor's Island when finished, will give us the finest airport in the world. His lucid exposition of the Mississippi river valley development, with its potentialities for a new, active and profitable mid-country industrial empire; his gratitude and interest in all veterans of all our wars, and their families; in fact, the zeal with which he labors for the public good, so tirelessly and unselfishly, covering every line of human thought and endeavor, certainly should and has endeared him to the hearts and minds of every appreciative person in our community. May God give him strength and wisdom to carry on.

Calls on All Legion Posts to Get Back of Bonus Drive

Editor Boston American:

Being a constant reader of your letter column I wish to state as a World War veteran I am interested in the bonus question.

I wish to express my views in regard to it. I suggest that if Legionnaires of this state would co-operate and show more interest than is being shown at present we would hear more about it.

Why don't the individual posts take it up and go on record in approval of it? Fall in line and put it over big as the convention went over.

It is no secret that the bill did not have a chance on the floor at the convention but show that we are unanimous for the bill and it may get somewhere. Fall in Legionnaires and do your stuff.

Bills Bigger Since Edison Cut the Price

Editor Boston American:

As a reader of the Boston American I would like to hear from some of the readers how many find their electric bills smaller since the price has gone down. I do not see any reduction in my bills using the same amount of electricity as when the price was 8½ cents per kw. hr.

Instead I get much larger bills now that it's 7 cents KW. hr., and I am not the only one as I have asked several different people and they also find their bills are larger. I wonder how does the Edison Electric Co. account for that. So take out your old bills and compare them with your new ones.

Urges Government Act Instead of Talk

Editor Boston American

I wish to protest and express my disgust with the dilatory action of our government in handling the unemployment situation. We hear too much of probes and investigations which seldom amount to anything except to create more jobs for high officials.

How is it that impoverished England can give millions in doles to her unemployed while our own government (the richest in the world) instead of action offers mostly talk?

If any hungry unemployed man dares to protest he is immediately classed as a Red. Instead of asking the workers to spend why not force the multimillionaires (some of them owning sufficient to support a nation) to do the spending. Put a limit on their income. Compel corporations and trusts to return to the workers some of their excessive dividends. In our country to be given over entirely to the interests of the wealthy? Have our dollars made us brutes?

NOT A RED

Speed in Settling Auto Insurance Claims Demanded

Editor Boston American:

Any member of the legislature who fails to get behind a bill to create additional service in adjusting accident claims should be recalled.

Of all the fool things fostered by any state the present permitting of conditions whereby it takes from three to five years to get a case with $25 to $50 involved into a court for adjustment is sad.

There is a bill before this legislature to create a board of six, to be appointed by the governor, and this board to do nothing else. At present our courts are loaded in a state of disgrace in such matter.

The new board could clean all cases up and keep the docket clean. I hope every reader of this will demand that his representative and senator will get squarely behind this new and needed idea and put it over.

Juicy Beefsteak Is His Answer to "Food Freaks"

Editor Boston American

I think I am fair-minded enough to ask those dietitians who are parading their ideas in Boston about what we should eat and what we should not eat, to use the soft pedal.

These spinach diets and the "Apple a Day" dictum. Live on 29 cents a day food. Drink five glasses of water a day. Eat raw food. Be partial to nuts. Drink two glasses of milk daily and many ring ads on meat diet—all these are advocated in Boston.

Boston is the greatest city for new ideas in food values. I am through with this dieting business and a good piece of rare, juicy beefsteak still holds the appetite without any frills from dieting. What do your readers think about food freaks?

Minnesota Man Boosted as Coffee Drinking Champ

Editor Boston American

That man who boasted the other day that he had taken 26 cupfuls in a coffee drinking contest is not the champion.

There is a man out in Minnesota who holds the record for continuous coffee drinking and swallowed 83 cupfuls. Has any record beaten this?

JOHN O. O'HEARN

Lauds Editorial Rap at Picayunish Bills

Editor Boston American:

It is good to notice in your editorial column that you took a fling at picayune bills.

It is a periodical itch that comes over some to present all sorts of bills before the Legislature. They should be limited. Much precious time and effort are used up over their discussion. I do not dare to give my remedy because it would be considered too drastic. Probably some reader will suggest one.

BENNETT VISIT GIVES RISE TO MANY RUMORS

Washington, Jan. 30 (INS)—The Rt. Hon. Richard B. Bennett, the prime minister of Canada, who was elected to office as an expression of Canada's resentment against the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, comes to Washington today accompanied by a flock of rumors concerning the real object of his mission.

Among these rumors are:

That Premier Bennett plans to discontinue the Canadian legation in Washington, to which no minister has been accredited since Vincent Massey was transferred to London months ago.

That he intends seeking a wheat alliance with the United States in order to protect both countries against Russian dumping, and to preserve, if possible, world markets for Canadian and American producers.

MAY PROTEST SHIP CASES

That he pans to lodge an energetic protest with the American government against the acts of violence committed by American coast guardsmen against vessels of Canadian registry, such as in the I'm Alone and Josephine K. cases.

That he wants a showdown with the United States on the long-negotiated and long-deferred St. Lawrence waterway plan.

That, following the "snubbing" which Canada received at the recent imperial conference in London last fall, he seeks a closer economic relationship with the United States.

FIRMLY IN SADDLE.

These are only a few of the many rumors that concern the visit of the Canadian premiere to Washington. There may be a little truth in all of them. Just how much probably will develop during the visit. Premier Bennett is a resourceful man, and a man of vigorous ideas concerning the relationship that should exist between his country and the United States.

Moreover, barring wholly unlooked for upsets in Canadian politics, he is securely in the saddle in Dominion affairs for some time to come. This and perhaps succeeding American administrations will have to deal with the Conservative Government which he heads.

'BURY HATCHET' SAYS LAVAL

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP)—Pierre Laval, one of the youngest premiers France has ever had, made his bow to the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon with a plea that the warring political blocs bury the hatchet and give the government a chance to carry out its policies of peace and reconstruction.

"The government," Laval's declaration said, "has decided to continue the national defense program which will guarantee security and independence, but at the same time it will try with other nations to reunite a rational and equitable limitation of armaments."

Laval said no secularization of the schools that he upheld the right of every child to free education and intended to work toward that end.

New "ready-made" suds make washing quicker, easier

See Chipso Granules burst into lather at touch of water! Women write, "Never saw such suds"

Mrs. J. C. S.—
"Got tired of boiling water to make my suds. Using Chipso Granules now!"

No more heating up water to dissolve the soap when you want to soak your clothes! Chipso Granules dissolve in lukewarm water, just the right temperature for soaking. And the active, busy Chipso suds free the dirt for you so that you get lovely white clothes with very little rubbing.

Mrs. C. K.—
"Chipso Granules take out 'played-in' dirt—so safely"

Children get clothes dirty—mothers get them clean. And the mothers who use the new Chipso Granules find washing an easier task. After a soaking in these instant, lasting suds, clothes need little rubbing even when they're very soiled.

"Wonderful"—"Never before such quick-working suds" say women who have tried Chipso Granules

Have you tried the new Chipso Granules? Every day more and more women are using them and saying enthusiastically: "Chipso Granules are so quick! They give suds instantly even in lukewarm water. Snowy, velvety, rich suds—and how much work these suds do! Dishes come out sparkling in a hurry, you will change your mind when you try Chipso Granules. Chipso Granules are rich—not strong. Their instant suds soak grease off dishes in a twinkling. You'll have sparkling glass and china before you know it. And your hands will show how glad they are you changed to a finer soap.

Mrs. W. A. C.—
"My hands always used to be rough—now they're nice and smooth"

If you thunk you must use a strong soap for dishes to get dishwashing done in a hurry, you will change your mind when you try Chipso Granules. Chipso Granules are rich—not strong. Their instant suds soak grease off dishes in a twinkling. You'll have sparkling glass and china before you know it. And your hands will show how glad they are you changed to a finer soap.

Mrs. H. A. H.—
"A package of Chipso came with my new washing machine—it was wonderful"

Yes, Chipso in Flakes or in Granules is the world's most popular washing-machine soap—more women use it in their washing machines than any other soap. It is handy to use—it gives such rich suds. But even more important, Chipso takes all the dirt out safely. Colored clothes are very grateful for Chipso.

Quickest Way To Knock a Cold

Millions Say of This Proved Way You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold on a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

Betty Gives Colt New Murder Clue

CHAPTER 12

Armstrong Questioned

THANKFUL Betty Canfield looked up at the Commissioner.

"Now, Betty, can you tell me Geraldine was innocent?"

"Absolutely."

"But the engagement was broken?"

"Yes—they kept meeting trying to patch up whatever it was they quarrelled about."

"Do you know what it was?"

"No."

"All right. We'll pass all that. Have you a lease on your apartment on Morningside Heights?"

"Yes."

"How long does it run?"

"Until next May."

"Then you intend to sublet it?"

"Yes. I have been trying for the last two months."

"Who exhibits the apartment when you are at work?"

Harry Phoned

"The janitor, or one of the elevator boys."

Dropping this, Thatcher Colt asked:

"When was the last time Harry Armstrong telephoned your apartment?"

"Harry telephoned twice about three o'clock on Saturday morning," she answered.

"You mean the early morning hours of Christmas Eve?"

"Yes."

"But how is that possible? Where did he telephone from? He was supposed to be on the night train to Boston."

"That's odd. You know I hadn't thought of that before, Mr. Colt."

Thatcher Colt lit his pipe, which had gone out. Dismissing the former lines of questions, he resumed:

"Now tell me the real reason why you meet Doctor Maskell with the frappe glance and the glacé manner? You fibbed to me the last time you were down here. You said you didn't like him, but didn't know why. But I doubted that yarn, Betty. What makes you dislike the doctor?"

She stood up and held out her hand.

"If I tell you, will you let me go home?"

"Promise!"

"Because Doctor Maskell often told Geraldine that he believed murder justified under certain circumstances. She the way she repeated it, I think he meant it, and since I heard that I could never bear the sight of him."

"Indeed!" said Thatcher Colt, softly.

Colt Moody

With one backward glance at me, Betty left the office. Thatcher Colt remained moodily at his desk, toying with the blue ribbon of the key.

"Our motives accumulate, Tony," he remarked

"Are there any that I hadn't noticed?"

"Plenty of them. Now let's have a look at Harry Armstrong."

The fiance of the murdered Geraldine was a young man of medium height, with greenish blue eyes, curly hair, and a slightly supercilious air. It was quite evident that he resented being called to police headquarters. But in spite of the rather top-lofty attitude that Armstrong assumed, it was easy to see and appraise the tragic, wounded expression that glowed in his handsome eyes.

As always, Thatcher Colt began by trying to win his confidence. In a murder mystery such as this, the commissioner explained, the police placed their chief reliance on the frankness of the friends of the slain person. He hoped he might count on Mr. Armstrong to answer all questions freely.

"You may," said the young man, laconically but with sharp emphasis.

"Your parents live in Boston?"

"My mother lives there."

"Father dead?"

"All right," he said. "Now, tell me about yourself."

RALLIES AND STARTS FIGHT TO LIVE

Police, Investigating Affair, Find Youth Who Shot Her Is Married

While there is only a slim chance of her recovery, Geraldine Garvet, 22-year-old telephone operator, rallied somewhat today in City Hospital following two blood transfusions, and her courage gave her family hope that she might win the battle.

"I'm going to get better, mother; don't be worrying about me," she told her mother today.

The report of the shooting in yesterday's Boston Evening American enabled a deputy sheriff to serve a court process on Philip Dooley, Miss Garvey's companion, charging failure to support his five-year-old child.

WIFE LIVES IN STOUGHTON

The child is Philip, Jr., now in custody of his mother on order of the court. Mrs. Dooley was Marion Mally of Stoughton before her marriage and makes her home with her mother there now.

Dooley told police he was unmarried when he was booked at Roxbury Crossing station on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Miss Garvey's mother and brother, a Yankee Division veteran, are spending day and night at the hospital, while other members of her family were with her until 3 o'clock this morning.

TWO TRANSFUSIONS

During the second transfusion last night, in which Thomas Garvey gave a pint of his blood, he kept up a running fire of banter with his sister to cheer her up. The first transfusion, earlier in the day, was submitted to by William Cronin of the State police, Miss Garvey's brother-in-law.

Discovery that Dooley was married caused reopening of the investigation of the mysterious shooting, which both he and the girl claim was accidental. Dooley is almost constantly at the hospital.

He is free on bail on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon which was placed against him when the girl was taken to the hospital.

WHY DR. CABOT IS DRY IS TOLD

Dr. Richard C. Cabot, new president of the Anti Salon League, today cited his medical experience for his dry views and said he believed prohibition is a benefit to the poor and sick.

In a public statement he said those who have studied the problem agree that alcohol is the cause of poverty and sickness that today is much less than it was before prohibition.

"None of the honest wets that I have talked with had had much reason in their daily lives to consider either the poor or the sick," he said.

"My own work has forced me to consider them especially and over a long period of years."

State Asked to Probe Fire in Lynn Apartment Block

Fire Chief Edward E. Chase of Lynn today asked the State fire marshal to conduct an investigation to determine the cause of a blaze that drove 40 persons last night from the apartment block at 1012 Washington st., Lynn.

The fire started in an unoccupied suite on the top floor of the four-story wooden building which houses 18 families. Damage was estimated at $2500.

An aged woman, Mrs. Frances R. Estes, was assisted out by Patrolman Chester Morley and Daniel Horgan who also, with the aid of Passerby, Charles F. Wilmot of Tudor st., warned all the occupants to leave.

The fire was discovered by Charles Courage, 19, who lives in the building. He gave the alarm and then helped out his younger sister Theresa and brother Kenneth When firemen arrived flames were shooting from the fourth floor windows.

A large crowd watched firemen battle the flames from the roof, and Washington st was blocked to traffic for nearly an hour

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? if so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the nex' best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

SCRUBWOMEN PROBE STARTS

Charging reflection on the reputations and characters of the scrubwomen, depicted in the recent cartoon in the Harvard Lampoon, former Rep. Thomas A. Niland of East Boston today sought criminal action of Dist. Atty Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County against those responsible.

Niland exhibited a copy of the paper showing the cartoon and insisted that "the printing of it was criminal beyond a shadow of doubt."

He called its reflections "mean" and "malicious" in his argument for action against those who printed it.

Asst. Dist. Atty. William G. Andrew was assigned to an investigation of the cartoon, its source and why it was printed. He refused to reveal his plans until the preliminary investigation is over.

The cartoon depicted a group of scrubwomen at a banquet table the caption 'With No Apologies to Mr Lamont The Alumni Do Right by the College Martyrs interpreted as a celebration of a collection taken up by an alumnus named Lamont to reimburse the women for a cut in wages ordered by the college authorities.

Niland presented a letter signed by Senator James J. Twohig of South Boston to Dist. Atty. Bishop expressing similar sentiments of the solon toward the cartoon.

ONLY $8000 A YEAR BIG SHOCK TO BRUNKER

Head of the Safety Committee Traces Two-Thirds of Murders to Dry Law's Failure

"If Chicago had Eugene C. Hultman for police commissioner, a vast number of our problems would be solved."

This is the opinion of Albert H. Brunker, wealthy Chicagoan and chairman of that city's Civic Safety Committee, composed of 100 leading business men

Following an address last night at the City Club, in which he lauded the Boston police and especially Commissioner Hultman, for keeping the city free of racketeer control, he made a tour of the city, calling on various officials

ONLY "GANG-FREE CITY"

"I was very much surprised to learn that Boston is paying its police commissioner only $8000 a year, particularly in view of the record Mr. Hultman is making," said Brunker today.

"Boston is the only large city in the United States that is free of racketeer control.

"Whatever gangster activity exists in Boston is only in miniature form compared with Chicago, and from my observation I would say the police head and his subordinates are doing an excellent job."

Heralded as "the man who cleaned up Chicago," because of the successful activities of the safety committee which he heads, Brunker told his audience at the City Club that Al Capone has 6000 ghats and city officials of Chicago on his payroll.

DRY LAW ROOT OF EVIL

Capone, he said, admitted taking between 15 and 20 million dollars out of his racketeering, but was trying to quit and had aided the safety committee in many ways.

"Two-thirds of the gangster murders and robberies in America can be traced directly to politics, which in turn can be traced to the prohibition law, which, in its present form, is unenforceable," he said.

"There has got to be some change in prohibition. Prohibition has played the role of putting wealth, beyond the dreams of avarice, into the hands of crime to use for the corruption of public officials."

Brunker predicted that William Hale Thompson would be re-elected mayor of Chicago, in spite of the fight to oust him

In his visits to local officials today the Chicagoan was accompanied by J. Weston Allen, former attorney-general, and a police guard composed of Special Officers William Goddelon and William J. Crowley

FIREMAN SAVES FOUR FROM DEATH BY FLAMES AT WOBURN

TENEMENT IS SWEPT BY BLAZE

Daniel Conniff, While Off Duty, Awakens Tenants and Carries a Woman to Street

Heroic work by Daniel Cunniff, 31, a Woburn fireman off duty, early today, saved four occupants of a two-story wooden tenement after fire had endangered the structure.

Those rescued were John Doherty, 63; his wife, Bridget, 60; John, Jr., 14, and Patrick Cronan, 65.

Cunniff was aroused from sleep at 3 o'clock this morning by the sound of a fire alarm nearby. He left his home in Fowle st to find the tenement house in flames.

He aroused the sleepers, carried the woman, Bridget Doherty, to safety, and then led her husband and the other man to the street. The boy escaped by himself.

The fire was started by hot ashes piled against the rear of the building. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

STAR GAZERS ON JOB TONIGHT

Astronomers all over the world are dusting off their telescopes today in preparation for tonight's observation of the planet Eros, when it comes nearer to the earth than it has since 1894.

Scientists at the Harvard Observatory are particularly interested in studying the star tonight because of its proximity to these parts of the heavens. Tonight Eros will be at a distance of only 16,000,000 miles from the earth. At times it gets as far away as 70 million miles.

Very accurate computations will be taken about Eros because it is what scientists call, "the yardstick of the solar system." Star students hope that they may be able to correct the computed 18,000,000 mile mistake in the distance from the sun to the earth after their study tonight.

Harvard's observation tonight will be done by Leon Campbell, under the direction of Prof. Harlow Shapley. The 15-inch telescope will be used. Prof. E. S. King will be in charge of photography.

Tomorrow Harvard hopes to be able to tell just where there is a mistake in the computation of the mere 92,870,000 miles that separate us from the sun.

Fitzgerald Talks at Morse Co. Dinner

Boston receives but little of the millions expended annually by the state for highway improvements, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald told members of the Leopold Morse Co. Mutual Benefit Association last night at its annual dinner and entertainment at the Hotel Statler.

Julius C. Morse, president of the Leopold Morse Co., acted as toastmaster for the evening. Other speakers included Harry Ross, manager of the Adams st. store, and Vice-President Alfred R. Wineberg, who presented the retiring president of the association with a wrist watch from the organization.

Harvard Astronomers to Look for Eros

FROM HARVARD, OBSERVATIONS will be made tonight of the planet Eros, which gets within 16,000,000 miles of the earth, the nearest it has been since 1894. All over the land, astronomers will stay up tonight for a peep at Eros. The great telescope at Harvard is being adjusted for the work by Leon Campbell, an astronomer. (Staff photo.)

Benefit Dance at Airport a "Sellout"

The Maryan Freiter memorial dance, to be held tonight at Boston airport, is a complete sellout, Harry E. Wallis, chairman of the committee, announced today.

Planned to raise a trust fund for the three-year-old son of a Boston flier, killed when his plane crashed just outside Philadelphia shortly before Christmas, the dance will attract practically all the personnel of the three Greater Boston airports.

POLICE "ARMY" FOR GUIFFRE FUNERAL

Gangland's "Truce" Fails to Halt Plans to Foil Outbreak of Vengeance War

Despite ominous whisperings in Boston's underworld and assignment of 56 patrolmen, three sergeants and a large detail of plainclothesmen to the funeral of Carmello Guiffre, slain gang leader, tomorrow morning, gangland expects the cortege to pass without an outbreak of open warfare.

But the ominous rumbles have their meaning. When the last mourner leaves the new-made grave in St. Michael's Cemetery, the flag of truce will flutter down, police fear. According to gang tradition, the death of "Goofy" must be avenged.

By an act of Mayor Curley today in approving the vote of the street commissioners, Carmello Guiffre, Sr., will receive $40,000 for the holes in which the body of his son is lying.

The commissioners voted to take property in Charter st. and Revere pl. for school purposes, and assessed damages to the amount of $138,000.

Crowds continued to throng the humble Charter st. home of the dead gangster. After the near collapse of the building on Wednesday night, the structure was shored and braced yesterday and mourners were again allowed to enter and pay their respects to the slain.

Services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Leonard's church in Prince st. The funeral cortege will then wend its way to St. Michael's cemetery, Forest Hills, for the burial.

How to Escape

FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin dissolved in water at the first touch of sore throat, as this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

FIN. COM. ORDERS SWEEPING INQUIRY INTO BOSTON SCHOOLS

GOODWIN MAY THROW CASE IN COURT

Report to Be Made to District Attorney "if Facts Warrant," He Says

The Finance Commission soon will hold public hearings to investigate the management of the Boston public schools, it was announced today by Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Finance Commission.

From other sources it was learned the spotlight will be thrown especially on the official acts of certain individuals and, if evidence warrants it in the opinion of the Finance Commission, a report will be made to the district attorney.

According to reports current at City Hall today the school hearings promise to be at least as spectacular as the Sunday baseball investigation and the Exchange st widening inquiry

IN REPLY TO HURLEY

The survey committee of experts hired by the Finance Commission has issued two installments of a seven-part report dealing with the schools, and when all the parts are issued, the hearings will begin.

The second installment brought a broadside last night from Chairman Joseph J. Hurley of the school committee, and it was in reply to Hurley that the Finance Commission chairman made his announcement today

"I want to take this occasion to appeal to the officials of the Boston school committee and their friends to await complete publication of the report of the investigating committee appointed by the Finance Commission without any further personal attacks.

CHARGES UNFAIRNESS

"I do this in the interests of fair play and for the good name of the city

"All these attacks will not alter in one iota the completion of the work which the Finance Commission has set out to do—namely, to let the taxpayers of the city of Boston know how their money is being spent for school purposes and how the system is being operated.

"The criticism that this report is being given out piecemeal is unfair because the school committee's own survey report was given out in the same manner

"The Finance Commission decided unanimously to give the report out in this manner and also decided to give everyone an opportunity to express his opinion about any part of the report before the commission expresses its opinion.

"IT'S TIME TO ACT"

"These hearings should be public because the time has arrived when the citizens of Boston are entitled to know the truth about the operation of the school system."

Chairman Hurley of the school board charged last night that the committee's findings were outrageously at variance with the facts and he attacked Goodwin personally.

The second installment of the findings said that 30 per cent of school salaries goes to persons who are doing something other than teaching The first installment said the law under which the schools are operated makes it impossible to fix responsibility for specific acts.

In front of his home at 32 Westbourne ter., Roxindale, the five men were reported to Div 17 as "loiterers" around a ditch fire in preparation for construction there today.

When the patrol arrived Sergt Gallahue left his home and spoke for the five to the officers sent there

Gallahue harbored the men in his basement during the night but this morning found the basement empty. At first he figured his good deed had been in vain until he heard noises outside and discovered the quintet washing windows as a show of appreciation

Breakfast was furnished by the police sergeant and today the five were the first to apply for jobs on the construction work and were told to report later in the day.

SUSPECT HELD IN SWINDLE

Thomas Costigan, 60, was held by Boston police today awaiting information from Rochester, N. Y., Chicago and California authorities in connection with alleged swindles, including one of $140,000 from Mr and Mrs John Callahan of Rochester

Mr. and Mrs. Callahan will view photographs of the captured man early next week in an effort to identify him

His method, according to police, was the duping of prospective money seekers at race tracks.

Chicago police noticed a similarity in his alleged methods with the faro game in which Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, former internal revenue collector, said she lost $50,000 in Chicago

The Chicago detective bureau, however, said they had no immediate information to connect him with it

Costigan was arrested last night in a West End Hotel on orders of Dist Atty. William J Foley.

Cyrena Van Gordon Sees Opera Talkies Coming Soon

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Operatic talkies!

Sound pictures of the famous operas sung by artists in the native tongue of the composer score!

Miss Cyrena Van Gordon, contralto diva of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, makes this prediction the realization of which she claims is to take place within two years

"Opera artists are students, and as students they will enjoy the thoroughness and hard work attached to the production of operas through sound films," Miss Van Gordon said in an interview in her suite at the Ritz Carlton.

While the innovation double will prove successful, the star maintained that it will never sufficiently substitute for a real opera.

"It is the personal contact that counts and no movies can supply it. However, it will do one thing. It will bring opera to those who want it, who will appreciate it, who love it, but who can't afford to hear many of them. And these people the sound reproductions of operas will be a revelation and a liberal education."

Don't say "It can't be done," until you've tried a Want Ad

Crooner Rudy Drives Boy Away From Harvard

Rudy Vallee won't know it yet as he heads south for Florida—but he has crooned James S. Angier right out of Harvard

Angier, son of the dean of Yale freshmen at Yale, has been released by Harvard, it became known today, for his "association" with the recent grapefruit-throwing at the Metropolitan Theater, with Rudy as the target.

Although police released Angier and two other Harvardians the Crimson authorities looked into the matter with an eye less restrained by light legalities

UNDER OFFICIAL EYE.

When the Harvard officials came out on the huddle it was with a decree that Angier become outward bound and that one of the two companions at the theater, William P. Blanc of New York, be placed on probation.

The third student was Joseph F Johnson, who is registered at the Harvard School of Business Administration, but was apparently no scene through the episode unscathed

It is understood at Harvard that young Angier's figurative scholastic spanking for not liking Rudy has left a background despite the fact that Angier has been at Harvard only since last September

In the interval it is decurred, neither has come frequently under the narrowed eye of Crimson officialdom for alleged actions not connected or related with the curriculum.

On one occasion Angier is asserted to have been gravely emptying dormitory fire extinguishers out on the grass of the yard because time was hanging heavily on his hands.

NOW FACES 'DADDY'

He has had an excellent scholastic record, but the Harvard officials felt they must test his accomplishments outside the course far outweighed those on the inside. Therefore the warning of the spirited student out of his class 2

Young Angier left Cambridge for his New Haven home at about the same time that Rudy, bess boy's recent guest, left Providence on a westbound train, for Florida.

What happened when the ex-Harvardian arrived home could not be learned, but his mother at the Angier home, admitted to reporters that circumstances reported as surrounding her son's return were essentially true.

She said that no plans have been made for his future.

In announcing his departure for Florida Rudy immediately after his weekly chain broadcast last night, Rudy remarked to his listeners-in:

"While I'm down there I hope I'll find time to autograph a few gramophone records for some of my friends."

OLD TIMER TELLS OF BLOODY BATTLE IN Big BLIZZARD

THE SNOW was falling heavily as we sat down to the typewriter. It was natural that the thoughts of the Old Timer, who had dropped in to see how we were coming out in our little grapple with One-Round Flu should turn to thoughts of the Battle in The Blizzard. As we gazed out the window, where the air was white with snow, memory took him with swift wings to other days and other scenes. He planted us at the ringside at Flaherty's in the wee sma hours of the morning when Johnny O'Brien fought Jack Dougherty in the last day of the big blizzard of '88.

When you gather in the Garden next Monday night to see the amateurs from Ireland, N. Y. was and Belgium swap punches with our boys from the Bay State, just imagine that you are in the place pointed to the Old Time Timer. It is in the crowded ham space make-up privilege.

A ring pitched on what in the summer time was an open air dance platform at Flaherty's. It now is hidden by huge banks of snow 18 feet high. Torches stuck in these snow banks cast an eerie glare on the show.

Clustered around the ring in the "front" are old time sports, overcoated, muttered, stamping to keep warm. They have come from Steve Brodie's, on The Bowery, Jack McAuliffe's White House in Williamsburg and other sporting resorts. They have come miles through the snow three feet deep on the level 10 and 15 feet deep in drifts, to see this scrap. Some of them who attempted to get out from Dover Bridge, South Cemetery, are rubbing icy hands raised from pockets, numb as a fish in the deep snow.

In one ring corner, stripped to the buff but swathed with horse blankets to keep out the bitter cold sits Brooklyn Johnny O'Brien. In the opposite corner, hidden in the horse blankets, is Philadelphia Jack Dougherty.

They call for the gloves. Not the five-ounce upholstered mittens of the present, but the regular skin fight fighting gloves of that era. A dozen pairs of buckskin gloves are offered by sporting goods. The fighter selects a pair. The fingers are stabbed off with a knife. The fight is on.

Thirty-seven rounds with those skin-tight gloves in the wee sma hours of the morning after the big blizzard of '88. Perspiration and blood freeze on those gloves and they become rough as razor, tearing the skin wherever they land. Thirty-seven rounds and they still are at it, hammer and tongs.

The door opens and a burst of light comes from Flaherty's Hotel. Out of the door come old man Flaherty, his two stalwart sons and two bulldogs. Old Man Flaherty carries a sawed-off shotgun. The Flahertys and the bulldogs invade the ring.

"Git," commands Flaherty. "The cops are comin' Git!"

They "git."

Just a prize ring epic of the days with the bark on.

WHERE OLD BOYS NOW HANG HATS

JOHNNY O'BRIEN, one of the principals in that famous battle of the Big Blizzard now is a plumber. Brooklyn has a number of ex-ring jacks. RECORD MAY FALL IN K. C. GAMES

By BILL CONNELL

Arnold Adams, quarter-mile headliner of Bates, is the final entry in the Prout 440, feature run of the William C. Prout Memorial track games at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

The addition of Adams to the field of Bernie McCafferty, Eddie Drake, Max Wakely and Eddie Rolf places five great double furlong runners in the scramble. Only five men will be permitted to start. Lee Andrews, Dartmouth flash, is ready to run in the Prout race if one of the other entries is scratched. Lowry, of Jr., born in the 440 is capable of doing better than 50 seconds for the quarter on the indoor record figures of 49.5 seconds may be equaled. On the 12 lap Garden track, it is not likely that the record will be broken, although with such a high grade of competition the winner may be forced to set a new mark.

14 Teams Entered in Relay Races

A splendid relay program, with 14 team races slated, is ready. These team affairs shuffled in among the feature races should give the enthusiasts a flock of thrills.

Harvard and Holy Cross, whose mile teams were the pick of the field at quarters last winter, are racing tomorrow. Two new men are on the Crimson four and two on the Crusader team. On each team the stars of last year remain, and are in championship form.

Harvard a Red Record, a great competitor and Vernon Munroe one of the fastest 440 men in... team up with Phil Dodge and Pearson or Manny Kolimeyer. Hernie McCafferty is the Cardinal's fastest, with Capt. George Mo... in very close to the dim limbed McCafferty. With them will run a couple of sophomores, Bob Tierney and Bill Oakley, unseasoned but very fast. The Harvard Holy Cross race should be one of the best of the night.

Boston College Meets Dartmouth in Mile

Boston College meets Dartmouth in a one-mile team race and the men from the Heights are favored largely because of the presence of Don Fleet on the team. The other Eagles are fit to race with Fleet for Bob Sullivan a veteran of Ed Carey and Joe King are fine runners.

Medart teams from Boston Latin, Boston English, Mechanic Arts and Boston Trade will be featured in the middle of the program. A prep school team race and a senior high school relay race are listed.

The concluding merry-go-round of the night, the two mile college relay, brings five teams to the mark. Boston College, H. Cross, Harvard, Northeastern and University of New Hampshire.

Eagles Have Fast Team in 2-Mile Relay

Boston College has a two-mile team composed of these veterans and one newcomer. The latter, Bob Jordan has run the fastest 880 time to date of any of the B. C. men this week.

Capt. Jack O'Brien, Tom Meagher, Brendan Monahan and Jordan running the Eagles may edge right into the thick of the distance races also has a fast team. Hal Carl is weakened by the loss of Ralph Hill, one of the best middle distance runners in Boston and New Hampshire are also entered.

Holy Cross Five to Play B. C. Next Week

Holy Cross basketball team will play another return from Boston College on Feb. 7 at the B. A. gym next Wednesday night as a part of the Boston College carnival week end.

Although the sport is not played at Boston College on account of lack of facilities, there are many former High school stars at the Heights who are playing for club and semi-pro teams.

Brothers Clash in Ice Game Today

New Hampton, N. H., Jan. 30—Two brothers from Watertown, [redacted], starring on rival ice hockey teams, will cross sticks today when the New Hampton School for Boys meet the New Hampshire University freshmen here. They are Logan and Ralph Field, the former a graduate of New Hampton, playing defense position for the freshmen. His brother, Ralph, is left wing for New Hampton.

Other Massachusetts boys who appear in the lineup are Captain Bill Jack of Belmont, Dick Potter of Boston, Bob Clark of Cambridge and Harry Sawyer of Watertown.

TWIN HOCKEY BILL AT ARENA

To the previously announced game between University Club and the West Point A. C. six of Nashua, N. H. at the Arena tonight has been added another game—between Melrose high and the B. C. freshmen—thus affording local followers of amateur hockey with a double chance to witness a double-header.

The two games will be played alternately, with the first face-off set for 8.15 o'clock.

Equipped with three speedy, balanced forward lines, the Nashua outfit has won 19 straight games this year. Last year the New Hampshire aggregation won 24 straight before being defeated and finally wound up the season with 34 wins, two losses and one tie.

Jack Hutchinson, of the U. C. will use his best lineup tonight. With their eyes still focused on the 1932 Olympics, the Black Hay clubmen have been taking their hockey more seriously this week than at any previous time.

The other game of the evening ought to provide plenty of action. Melrose is undefeated in eight games and seems headed for its third straight. Greater Boston title. The B. C. freshmen, composed for the most part of former Boston high school stars are going to revive the ice sport at the Heights.

THURNBLAD IS BILLIARD CHAMP

Chicago, Jan. 30 (AP)—Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago is the new three-cushion champion of the world. He won the title, worth between $20,000 and $30,000, by upsetting another Chicagoan, Allen Hall 50 to 43, in 53 exciting innings last night in the final match of the 1931 championship tournament.

Thurnblad, a draughtsman by profession, played a consistently brilliant game against Hall. Shaky and erratic at the start, he made mistakes that enabled Hall to gain a 25 to 18 lead at the end of the 23d inning. Then he found himself and his steady strokes rolled up the count and then gave him the lead at 30 to 29 in the 29th inning.

After that it was a close up and down match until Hall was stopped by three consecutive misses in the 46th, 47th and 48th innings. This gave the new champion a lead of four points and shattered Hall's nerves.

Unbeaten Teams in Polo Tilts Tomorrow

Three undefeated polo teams and another trio that misses a similar distinction by the margin of only a goal, will play tomorrow night in a doubleheader at Commonwealth Armory.

The unbeaten teams meeting in the Class A feature are Harvard, Yale and the 101st Field Artillery, rivals for years and the only outfits ever to win the Plummer Trophy, emblematic of the local indoor championship.

The Class A schedule brings the unbeaten Lancers against the Harvard freshmen, whose last-minute substitution for the junior varsity against the 102nd Field Artillery last week resulted in a defeat by half a point.

Flowers to Fight Fuller at Argonne

Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle (N. Y.) lightweight, and Sammy Fuller of the North End have been matched to box in a 10-round bout under the direction of the Argonne A. A. at the Arena a week from Monday night.

Flowers takes the place of Andy Callahan of Lawrence, who was obliged to withdraw from his contest with Fuller on account of a broken hand. Callahan suffered the injury in a bout with Steve Smith at Brockton last Friday night.

Rhyne Signs Sox Contract for 1931

Harold Rhyne, shortstop for the Boston Red Sox, has signed his 1931 contract and it was received at the offices of the Red Sox today. Rhynes home is in Ingleswood, Cal.

FRANCHISE OF OTTAWA TO BE SOLD

By BILL GRIMES

Despite the consistent denials, the Ottawa franchise will, and should be, disposed of at the end of the present season.

The offer of $100,000 for the franchise is the first definite indication of the desire of groups interested in pro hockey to take the Senators out of the hands of the present owners. A group of Ottawa men made the $100,000 offer.

Since the advent of the National Hockey League into the United States, Ottawa has failed to keep pace with the trend of the times, from a financial viewpoint. The Canadian capital has been represented by some of the finest clubs in the league, having captured the Stanley Cup in the season of 1926-27 by defeating the Bruins in that never-to-be-forgotten series. The conclusion of which everyone from the highest government official to the Boston stick carrier are alleged to have swapped punches.

The Senators were beaten in the first round of the playoffs the following season by the Montreal Maroons and last year the Rangers eliminated them in the playoffs of the third teams by a one-goal margin.

Despite the success of the Senators on the ice, the club has been a losing proposition. Frank Ahearn carried the load for years and, after discovering that the receipts from the street cars to the arena did not offset the deficit of the hockey club, he placed the Ottawa franchise and players on the market.

William Foram, the present head of the Ottawa club interested local capital and made a deal with the former owner for the purchase. But apparently the pay-as-you-play plan did not function to the entire satisfaction of Ahearn, for he wielded last season made a demand for payment in full, threatening to depose of his interests to outside parties if his demands were not fulfilled.

Ottawa Press Blames Poor Season

The Ottawa press has been and still a trying to convince the hockey public that the axe is being swung at the Senators because the club is having a poor season, following in the games.

The demand for the sale of the Ottawa franchise has absolutely nothing to do with the failure of the club on the ice.

True, the Ottawa fans are not turning out to see their losing team. The Canadian capital has great pride in its winning hockey clubs but refuses to patronize a loser. Ottawa is the finest breeding ground of hockey players in the world. There is a healthy sprinkling of Ottawans throughout the National Hockey League, and many of the game's greatest stars started their hockey in Ottawa.

The retention of Ottawa in the National Hockey League is unfair to the other clubs in the Calder loop. In the first place, the Ottawa Arena is too small for a big league rink.

Although it is claimed that the Arena has a seating capacity of 9000, these figures are two or three thousand away from being correct. The arena is old-fashioned to such an extent that it is not even heated, and unless he was a native of Ottawa, a hockey fan would freeze to death watching a game. It is very much an anachronism for the old Montreal Arena, which was discarded in favor of the Forum as soon as the American owners began to tie up with the N. H. L.

Berg and Perlick Clash Tonight

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Jackie (Kid) Berg, British lightweight ace and Herman Perlick of Kansas City, Mich., clash in Madison Square Garden tonight for the third time, but it is not a "rubber match."

Berg won both their previous meetings and rules as the favorite to make it three in a row from the middle westerner, although the Michigan lightweight gave him a stiff argument all the way in their last clash.

Medford Girl to Run in Millrose Games

Miss Carew will head the Medford-Boston quartet, which placed second to the Millrose team in the indoor national championships and again last fall in the Prudential relay carnival.

The third team will represent Philadelphia.

Irish Boxers Face Keen Competition in Tourney

The Irish boxers who will compete in the international tourney at the Boston Garden on next Monday night have received the most attention from the fans, but they will have to step some if they are to outscore the Norwegian battlers.

Al Lacy, who has trained Uncle Sam's amateur boxers for Olympic games, is authority for this statement.

Lacy, with Jack Sharkey, has been looking over the Norwegian boxers in their daily workouts at Toland's Gym. Al says the Norwegian boys are well trained in the fundamentals of the ring game and that they will make things interesting for their rivals on Monday night.

Ole Roisland, 133-pounder, and Olaf Lund, middleweight, are two of the best of the invading boxers according to Lacy and Sharkey. These two warriors are fair boxers and good punchers.

Leominster Boy to Face Irish Giant

Mat Flannagan, Irish heavyweight, has come in for more attention than any single boxer who will appear in Monday's show at the Garden tonight. There is something about an Irish heavyweight that has a wide appeal.

Henry Surette of Leominster is expected to give Flannagan plenty of opposition. Surette is one of the best looking simon pures to punch his way to the front in a long time.

Frank Carlo, 192-pounder from Everett, and Dick Madden, Dorchester heavyweight, should also give a good account of themselves.

Mickey Bishop of Stoughton, who won the Golden Glove title in the middleweight class, is expected to show plenty of gloves to the foreign ring men.

Bill Mignault of West Bridgewater will also compete in the 160-pound division, as will Al Zappala of Lawrence. The latter's injured hands are now okay and he is expected to make a strong bid for the honors in the 160-pound group.

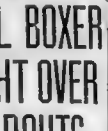
Al Friedman, Roslindale Heavy, Retires From Ring

LOCAL BOXER FOUGHT OVER 300 BOUTS

By JACK CONWAY

Al Friedman, the Roslindale heavyweight, today announced his retirement from the ring.

This remarkable fighting machine, with a record of having engaged in 60 bouts last year has turned his back on active competition.



Jack Conway

He has joined Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Jack Jeffries, Jimmy Leonard and other knights at the padded mitts.

"I am now through with the boxing game for all time," Friedman said. "I have taken part in 300 bouts during my ring career in the ring. In 1926, I heard the opening gong 60 times.

"I met all-comers. Unlike most of the present day ring leaders, I didn't pick my opponents. I went in and fought anybody named by the public and promoters.

"Boxing has built up my body. Despite the large number of ring contests in which I engaged, I never suffered any serious injury. My hands are as strong as iron. I think that proper hitting had much to do with protecting my hands.

"Now that I'm through with the ring, I'm going to try to develop my mind to a point where it is equal with the power I possess in my body. I have always got enjoyment out of reading. This is one of the best ways to improve the mind.

"I intend to keep studying. Perhaps some day I shall equal the educational accomplishments of Pal Reed, who recently received a degree from New Hampshire State.

"Meanwhile I intend to try to get a job as instructor of boxing at one of the New England colleges. I can accomplish a great deal of good by teaching boxing to youngsters. While on the pads as a boxing coach, I intend to take educational courses."

The fans will wish Friedman success. He always gave the cash customers a run for their money. His aggressive willing style made a hit with everybody.

McCarthy and Brown in Brockton Bout

Jack McCarthy, Roxbury light heavyweight, and Gus Brown of Canton will collide in a 10-round bout at the Brockton Garden tonight. McCarthy scored a technical knockout over Jack Perry of Worcester at the Arena the other night and looks like one of the most promising of the younger set of battlers.

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion will accompany McCarthy to Brockton and will advise him as to the best style to adopt against Brown.

Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury and Vernin Merlin of Roxbury will collide in a six-round semifinal. Goody Swarts of Cambridge faces Joey Mack of Quincy. Billy Nelson of Brockton tackles Boob McNutt of Milford, while Midget Dundee of Brockton takes on Frankie Garcia of Quincy.

Jim Maloney Leaves for Florida at 5 P. M.

Jim Maloney starts the journey to Florida at 5 p. m. when he entrains for New York. He will remain in New York tonight and will start for Miami tomorrow. Maloney will be accompanied by Dan Carroll and Eddie Carroll.

Frank Bruen has arranged for a reception to Maloney upon his arrival in Miami. Shamus will have plenty of time in which to get into condition as his bout with Primo Carnera has been set for March 5 at the New York Garden's arena in Miami.

Bonaglia and O'Kelley in Providence Ring

Con O'Kelley, Irish heavyweight, and Michele Bonaglia, European light heavyweight champion, will collide in a 10-round bout at Providence tonight under the direction of Sam Price.

Eddie Holmes and Billy Lynch, Rhode Island rivals, will meet in the semifinal of 10 frames.

Andover Meet to Be Held Feb. 21

The seventh annual interscholastic track and field meet of Phillips Academy of Andover will be held Feb. 21 and is open to all high schools in Massachusetts.

The Case Memorial cage, as in the past, will be the scene of this schoolboy track carnival of nine events, with four places to count in the final scoring. The events will be the 40-yard hurdles, the 40-yard dash, the 300-yard run, the 600-yard run, the 1000-yard run, the relay, the 12-pound shotput, the running high jump and the standing broad jump.

Entries will close February 14. Each school may enter three men in each event excepting the 300-yard run, in which but two men from each school may be entered. Heats will be run in the "600" and "1000," the four best times in these events to decide the winners.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BIG CHIEF ROEBUCK

TINY ROEBUCK, all-American tackle from Haskell Indian School, who meets Andy Zahrahoff of St. Louis in one of the preliminaries of the Dusek-Jones wrestling bout in the Garden, tonight, is a full blooded Choctaw. Here you see him in his full tribal regalia, war bonnet and all. Roebuck is a game'un. Fifteen minutes after his first professional wrestling match with Jack Washburn in Philadelphia last June Tiny collapsed in the dressing room. Doctors rushed him to the hospital and one hour later Roebuck was minus his appendix. The medicos marvelled Roebuck was able to go through with the match.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

At the conclusion of the season at least two of the Canadian-American League referees will be released. Although, on the whole, there has been less trouble than usual with officials in the Can.-Am. League this season, the club owners, who are responsible for the appointments, are not satisfied.

As the Can-Am League is aiming at local officials, Bill Cleary of Cambridge may receive his appointment next fall. Cleary is the outstanding hockey referee in these parts and is deserving of a tryout. Cleary is well posted on the rules, knows the game from a player's angle, displays fine judgment under most trying conditions and calls them in a real business-like manner.

In the opinion of no less an authority than Sprague Cleghorn, manager of the Reds, Sylvio Mantha is one of the greatest defense men ever connected with the game.

Rumors are current that the American Hockey Association is making plans to drop a club into Boston.

Both the Providence and Springfield clubs are pulling for either the Tigers or the Eagles to grab off third place in the race for the Can-Am championship. The Reds and the Indians admit that the Arrows are coming fast and will offer too much opposition for safety during the playoffs.

It was because the Reds feared that the Arrows were getting too strong that Hago Harrington was not sold to the Philadelphia Can-Am Club instead Pres. Jean Dubue shifted Leo Murray from the Detroit Olympias to Herbie Gardiner's outfit.

The Bruins, who returned from New York this morning, will attend the Bill Prout meet at the Garden tomorrow night.

The Rhode Island Reds are scheduled to play in Quebec City one week from tomorrow night. The Providence squad, headed by Manager Sprague Cleghorn, will leave for Canada next Thursday night and will be accompanied by a large delegation of Reds rooters.

Recently, Frank Carroll, manager of the Springfield Indians, received a telegram from Col. Hammond, of the New York Rangers, which stated, "Moss wants Siebert played on the wing." Laugh that off.

There are a number of clubs in the N. H. L. that would be strengthened by the acquisition of Earl Siebert of Springfield. He is owned by the Rangers, which incidentally is one of the teams on which Siebert could be used to advantage.

According to tidings from Springfield, Gene Carrigan is going to be returned by the Rangers and Deacon Waite will be passed on to the Tigers, if this is authentic, Manager Eddie Powers will welcome the Human Hairpin with open arms and Waite will be happy again.

Ludger Desmarais, of the Rhode Island Reds is out of the game with a chipped collar bone. "Demon" is a big favorite in Providence, for he has played bang-up hockey since he was taken over by Sprague Cleghorn.

JONES-DUSEK GRAPPLE ON GARDEN MAT

Complete Card at Garden Tonight

Paul Jones, Houston, vs. Rudy Dusek, Little Rock, one fall to a finish.

Tiny Roebuck, vs. Andy Zahrahoff

Sandor Szabo vs. Casey Berger.

Pat O'Shocker vs. Gino Garibaldi

Dick Daviscourt vs. Milo Steinbach.

By RINGSIDE

Paul Jones, Houston, Texas heavyweight, will try to stop the winning streak of Rudy Dusek of Little Rock, Ark., in local rings when they battle in a one fall match to a finish at the Boston Garden tonight, under the direction of Ray Fabiani.

Jones takes the place of Jim London, Greek heavyweight. London was unable to go through with his meeting with Dusek on account of a heavy cold and leg injuries received in his bout with Jim McMillen in New York.

Dusek has agreed to go through with his bout with Dusek at the Boston Garden on Feb. 13.

Jones Well Schooled in Fine Points of Game

Jones has been wrestling for eight years. He started his career as an amateur and was well schooled in the fine points of the game when he busted into the pro ranks.

Dusek has shown on three occasions at the Boston Garden and furnished the fans with plenty of action.

Tiny Roebuck, Indian wrestler will have Andy Zahrahoff of St. Louis as an opponent. Sandor Szabo, Hungarian grappler, will clash with Casey Bergw, former Iowa star. Pat O'Shocker will collide with Gino Garibaldi while Dick Daviscourt will have Milo Steinbach as an opponent.

Nick Lutze Shooting for Wrestling Fame

Nick Lutze, California wrestler, looks like one of the best bets among the big fellows. He will be back in our midst next Thursday night when he collides with Jack Sherry, Ohio state champion, in a show to be staged by Paul Bowser at the Arena. In his Hub debut, Lutze upset Pat McGill.

Mechanic Arts Tops Memorial Runners

Mechanic Arts high defeated Memorial high, 140 to 100, in a dual track meet with the field events being run off concurrently at Memorial and Mechanic Arts gyms.

Local Ball Clubs Complete Plans for Training Trip

By JOE CASHMAN

Three weeks from tomorrow, the Red Sox and Braves will start training in the Southland and before you realize it, spring and the baseball season will be with us again.

Both local clubs have practically completed arrangements for their departure from the Hub on February 19.

Manager Bill McKechnie is in town now conferring with his boss, Judge Fuchs, about training plans. When he leaves tomorrow, all details will have been settled and he will not return to Boston until he leads his Tribesmen back for the exhibition series with the Sox on April 11 and 12.

John Collins, Fenway pilot, will come down from his home in Pittsfield to attend a banquet which local admirers will give in his honor on February 11 and will tie a few loose ends with Bob Quinn at that time.

There is so little for "Shonny" to do, though, that he probably wouldn't come at all but for the ceremonial.

McKechnie is spending most of his time deciding what players he will take South. He has over 40 athletes on his list but doesn't expect to call more than 35 down to St. Pete.

McKechnie Will Give Youngsters a Chance

He will not slight the youngsters, as has been reported. All newcomers to the club will be given every chance to prove their worth. He won't, however, waste any more time with several players who have failed to make good after several trials.

Pilot Bill and old "Hankus Pankus" Gowdy, his right eye, will devote the first week in camp to the battery men and then greet the rest of the squad. If any of the fielders, though, feel ambitious and report early, they will be welcome.

"Mac" and his assistant will not have many breathing spells for the first. Tribal exhibition game is listed for March 7, but the pilot is confident that his charges will be ready in time.

Athletes to answer the first call all the rookie infielders and outfielders as well as the pitchers and catchers will have to be on hand at Jacksonville on Feb. 21. The veteran fielders will get in a week later.

According to present indications there will be at least 10 more players in the Red Sox camp than in the Braves.

"Shonny" and his aide, Rudy Hulswitt, will have a week longer than the Wigwam leaders to get their squad in shape to play, as the Fenway Dock is not listed to swing into action for the first time until March 14.

Two more of Bob Quinn's hired men signed on the dotted line today. When Secretary Hy Alsop opened his mail he found the contract of Walter Murphy, rookie pitcher, and soon after Hal Rhyne's document arrived.

Most of the Red Sox infielders and battery men are now safely in the fold, but Earl Webb, Tom Oliver and Russ Scarritt, the regular outfielders last season, are all unsigned as yet, as far as is known.

B. A. A. School Meet Entries Close Feb. 7

Tom Kanaly of the B. A. A. announced today that entries for the B. A. A. schoolboy track games at the Arena will close on Feb. 7. The games are slated for the afternoon of Feb. 14. In the evening of the same day the annual meeting of the B. A. A. is held.

Over 40 schools already have signified their intention of entering the relay competition of 15 races is being arranged for the natural rivals of the school ranks. The B. A. A. trophy, which last year was won by Worcester Academy, will be up again. Four B. A. A. championship events, the 40 yards dash, 600 yards, 1000 yards and two-mile runs are worked into the school meet program.

HORSE RACES AT TOPSFIELD TO AID RED CROSS

Those who are interested in the light harness racing sport are in for an afternoon of sport at the Topsfield Fair grounds to morrow afternoon, when a program of five events are to be run off.

A match race between Frank Q and Helen Risver in half-mile heats is filled. The other classes will bring to the wire such well-known performers as Don Worthy, Flambo, Wharton Watts, Peter Hall and Honey Bee.

The entire proceeds are to be donated to the Topsfield Red Cross. With good weather, it is expected that a large crowd of fans and enthusiasts from nearby towns and cities will make the trip, not alone to enjoy the racing but also to look at a few champions which are encamped there in charge of Townsend Ackerman. Jack Kingsley and Walter Gibbons.

BRUINS BEAT RANGERS, 4-3

New York, Jan. 30—By a brilliant drive in the third period, the Boston Bruins defeated the New York Rangers here, 4 to 3, in a hard fought National league hockey contest. The victory continues their remarkable record of not having lost a game to the Rangers in more than two years.

With Boston a man short on a penalty, the Rangers were attacking with five men. Chapman got away from the pack, outskated his pursuers, and shot the winning goal. Cooney Weiland, the game's high scorer, had given Boston a 3-2 lead earlier in the period when he snatched up Dit Clapper's rebound for a goal.

The Rangers took the lead three times in the first two periods on individual dashes by Paul Thompson and Bill Cook and a clever three-man attack in which Butch Keeling scored. Clapper tied the score for Boston the first time, and Weiland brought the count to 2-2 in the second frame. Perk Galbraith furnished assists on both plays.

Chicago Silent on Sharkey-Walker Go

Chicago, Jan. 30 (AP)—Chicago Stadium officials today were silent on current reports that they would attempt to match Jack Sharkey and Mickey Walker for a bout in June as a counter attraction to the New York Madison Square Garden's proposed Schmeling-Young Stribling fight at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Walker always has been a big attraction in Chicago and the Chicago Stadium officials admit their belief that he and Sharkey would provide a match able to attract customers away from the heavyweight championship fight.

DAMON RUNYON Says

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30—"If you've got any place to keep him, you can have Damon Runyon," said Mr. Otto Wohlanf, magnanimously. "He's getting a little too old for racing, but he's kind and gentle, and he would make you a lovely house dog. Take him if you want him."

I contemplated my famous Damon nameSake longingly. It would be a nice thing to have a greyhound racing history maker like him stretched in front of my fireplace on nights, dreaming of his by gone glory. Only I have no fireplace.

It would be swell to have the great Damon Runyon following me up and down Broadway and to have the boys point him out, and say:

"There ain't never been that old pooch on record for a quarter of a mile yet."

Then it suddenly occurred to me that many of the boys might remember bets they had lost on Damon Runyon and surreptitiously slip him a handsome unmarked wherewith to buy a few drinks.

I decided to leave Damon Runyon in the loving care of Mr. Otto Wohlanf, who owned him in his heyday, and still takes him with him wherever he goes.

So I patted the old champion on the head and said goodby to him. I doubt if Damon Runyon would have been happy with me, anyway.

He didn't act as if he appreciated me, being far more interested in a lame white rabbit that a trainer was holding up in front of him by the ears to draw an alert pose from Damon Runyon for the cameraman.

Wohlauf Introduced Dog-Racing to Europe

Mr. Wohlauf is the man who introduced racing to England where it has been enormously successful. He now has a government concession for tracks in Vienna, Warsaw and Budapest. The game has been far more successful in foreign countries than in the United States, mainly because of the lack of opposition to betting elsewhere.

There are a number of tracks in Shanghai, China, and it is related that last year on the Shanghai track made over $378,000 profit. The tracks in this country are generally profitable where they are permitted to run, but they are not permitted to run everywhere. I'd like to have the money that has been spent on dog tracks in the U. S. if they were not allowed to go.

There are three tracks in Miami, all doing fairly well. In some sections of the country dog racing has more followers than horse racing. Much of the dog owners maintain their racing brings in considerable style.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"Golf's Greatest Player"

Each golfer knows, whatever his status as a player, that he should not slug. Everybody in golf knows that, but he feels that he cannot avoid it since his opponent does. The slug is the most common fault of the most reasonably good golfer found. Golf is an individual game and it requires much thought and study, but the important thing for yourself is to make sure that your efforts are soundly based, else your practice and all your efforts will largely go to waste. I give you assurance that you will not go wrong in using your clubs as nearly as you can as if they were whips. Just doing that will promote poise and smoothness, without which you cannot possibly acquire golfing skill. You can accentuate the whipping action by slightly emphasizing the pressure of your thumbs and forefingers against the shaft, making that pressure-touch predominant in your grip. With that sort of grip, and with the club swung as a whip, you will almost automatically make the clubhead do its work—which will mean that the club will crisply take the ball each time.

Privateer

A privateer was a ship belonging to private individuals sailing under license, termed a letter of marque, granted by a government in time of war to seize and plunder ships of the enemy. They were used in our Revolution.

This Day in Our History

On Jan. 30, 1835, an attempt was made to assassinate President Jackson by a lunatic named Richard Lawrence. Lawrence said he believed the President had ruined the country. The attempt on his life was unsuccessful.

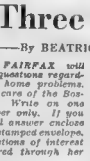
Which Shall She Pick of Three Soldiers?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl in my late 'teens and am considered very attractive and I have been told that I have a pleasing disposition. In the past year I have met three very nice soldiers. Now, Miss Fairfax, they are all very polite, but you know how people talk when they see you with a man in uniform. The first one whom I met is named Sonny. He is very nice, but he thinks he is so important. He is also inclined to be jealous and often thinks I go out with other fellows while he is on duty.



Beatrice Fairfax

The second one is named Eddie. He is just great, but you have to start him going. He says he cares for me, but when we are in public he is so indifferent. The third one is named Tom. He is very nice, but is very conceited. He says I act as if I was about 13, but really, Miss Fairfax, I don't. They all write to me and I write to them, but I don't know which one to choose. What would you suggest.

BUBBLES.

Dear Bubbles: I am not sure from your letter whether any of these young men have given you a chance to accept or reject them. In any case, it would no difficult for me to decide on so important a question unless I knew more about the boys. As for going with a man in uniform, if your reputation is above reproach nons will talk about you. I should advise you quickly to make up your mind, however. One man, uniform or civilian may be a credit to a girl, but a number of men are not.

Didn't Get Diamond Back

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I had been going with a young man off and on for over a year. He is 27 and I am 25. He said he was engaged to another girl, but they quarreled frequently. He told me he'd marry me if he could get his diamond ring back. So, after encouraging me all summer, he sends me a letter telling me to forget him. What would you do about it?

HEART BROKEN

Dear Heart Broken—Please let me profit by your sad tale. Come, and that very soon, when you'll be thankful that this thirsty young man couldn't get his diamond ring back and that you haven't got to put up with a man who knows nothing about loyalty. He didn't break his engagement because he had ceased to love his fiancee, but because he was worried over something, which represented money value. Next time you have a sweetheart it might be well to find out if he's free of former entanglements.

Here's a Happy Family

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Three years ago I ran away and got married. My friends and relatives were greatly surprised because I had not told them of my intentions, for they would have objected to my marrying a middle-aged man when I was only nineteen. But I knew what I was "getting." I had known my husband two and a half years and he had courted me. I think the secret of our success in married life is that we are both interested in the same things, both anxious to help anyone in need; we try always to sacrifice our own feelings for each other, and my husband is not a bit jealous of me. He has given me a free hand, never questions where I go or what I do.

I'm writing this to ask you why it is that people always think it's terrible to marry one older than yourself. I would safely say that there is no home in this city or suburbs as happy as ours, yet we have had the same hard time to get along financially as many other middle class people.

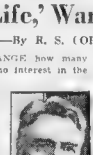
B. C. A

Dear B. C. A.—Congratulations, my dear B. C. A., on your happy solution of the all important problem. It's not a difference in years that counts so much as a difference in tastes, likes and dislikes—as your very happy marriage has proved. The reason "old bachelors" are supposed not to make ideal husbands is that they're "set" in their ways and quite have to make themselves over to please their older husbands. But you evidently knew how to pick a winner.

Don't Breathe 'Air Without Life,' Warns Expert

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT IS STRANGE how many persons have no interest in the sort of air they breathe. They appear perfectly indifferent to a atmosphere that you could "cut with a knife." They will sit for hours in a room blue with tobacco smoke, or in air filled with dust.



Dr. Copeland

There are persons who sleep all night long with every window closed. There are lots of them. They seem not to know or care that the air is perfectly vile.

All I can say is they are laying up trouble and misery for themselves and their families. Unless you are built like a savage, you cannot have good health without a lot of fresh air in the house day and night. You should make it a point to have some ventilation, whether it is by way of windows or doors or by some artificial means.

Of course, if you are so fortunate as to have a house installed with modern ventilation, you are to be congratulated. But few have adequate ventilating systems so that the only means of having fresh air is by way of the window or door.

The man who is accustomed to a well-ventilated house will not tolerate his office or place of business to be choked all day long with stale, foul, odor-ous smoke. He will insist on having the windows open, time to time over, and over the breathing air for hours is to damage the delicate membranes of nose, throat and lungs. The eyes will suffer.

Many of the too prevalent colds of winter may be traced to a vitiated air without life. Living in a room or house with poor ventilation is dangerous.

I beg of you not to permit yourself and your family to live in such stuffy rooms. The idea way to live is to have your house well heated that you can have every room ventilated by having at least one slightly open window.

There is nothing to the world so good as fresh air for man, woman and child. Next to eating it is the most important factor in insuring good health.

Dress yourself warmly enough so that you can enjoy the fresh air. Build up resistance to disease by getting out-of-doors and breathing the right kind of air indoors, every day, every night. For the sake of your health do this, and get proper exercise while you are doing it.

It isn't necessary to sit in a draught, and you should not. There are shields and other devices to direct the currents of air to the ceiling. Give thought to the problem and you can work out some plan for yourself to get fresh air without chill.

Cheerful Bedrooms

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

THERE'S ONE ROOM in the house that almost more than any other, you want cheerful and pleasant. For psychological reasons.

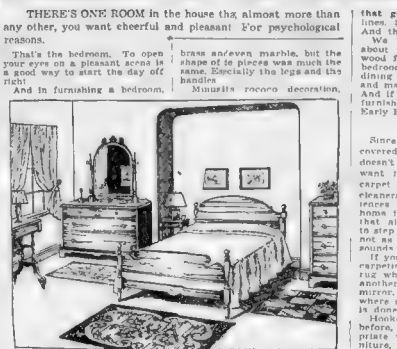
That's the bedroom. To open your eyes on a pleasant scene is a good way to start the day off right.

And in furnishing a bedroom, as we're going to do today, that's something to remember. Well—it won't be hard to do.

The question is—what kind of a suite? And one of the most fashionable answers you can make to that is, Early American. That means the four-poster beds and the chests of drawers that look like the ones our early-to-bed and early-to-rise ancestors used. They knew the importance of waking up on a pleasant scene, too, you see.

Many of the wood they used. Because there was plenty of it right in their back yards. And maple is used today — a light cheerful-looking wood that at once suggests sunshine and brightness.

You can see the typical pieces in the sketch. It's not elaborate or grand. It is sturdy, comfortable and serviceable looking. And with it go the sturdy, serviceable hooked or rag rugs—the same sort of rugs our Early American women-folk made out of Jonathan's cast off underwear and Ezra's worn-out overcoat.



Early Ameaan Type

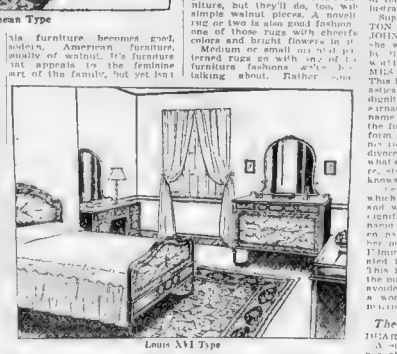
Louis XVI Suite

The other illustration shows another important fashion that they call Louis XVI which sounds pretty fancy for such good modest furniture. But before Louis XVI sat to pillow was head on the guillotine in the French Revolution, he used to pillow it on a bed tufted something like this one.

His furniture was much fancier. The wood was grayed-up with paint and carved with a delicate design. Or it was painted in two colors, with the carving picked out in gold. Pretty fine stuff, with heavy mahogany, for the bolder designs in style.

And with this, we've got the most necessary pieces of furniture into our house. We've entertaining, cook, dress and sleep comfortably. And of course things comfortable is the first requirement of modern American living.

Our next job is to see how we can make this furniture become good, modern, American furniture, worthy of walnut. It's furniture that appeals to the feminine part of the family, but yet isn't so feminine that it makes the men of the house feel that they're living in the boudoir.



Louis XVI Type

Queen Anne Sets

For a third good bedroom fashion there's the Queen Anne type with its graceful curved lines. The bedroom suite is in the living room and the dining room. Walnut is the wood for it. It has a princess and colonial flavor that makes it fine for that guest room that you've been wanting to furnish. It would be fine in oak, too. Early English style.

Rug Fashion

Since so much of the floor is covered by the bed, a bedroom doesn't need a big rug unless you want it particularly. But wood carpet sweepers and vacuum cleaners are modern conveniences found in almost every home today, lots of people find that allover carpeting is warm to step on on cold mornings, and not as hard to keep clean as it sounds.

If you don't have a big piece of carpeting, you will want a small rug where you step out of bed, another in front of the dressing mirror, and any other spot where much standing or walking is done.

Hooked rugs as we mentioned before, are particularly appropriate with early American furniture, but they'll do, too, with simple walnut pieces. A woven rug or two is also good fashion with one of those rugs with cheerful colors and bright flowers in it.

Medium or small patterned rugs go with any of the furniture fashions we're talking about. Rather small ones that go well with its graceful lines. Simple, good to look at. And that's why it's fashionable.

We haven't said anything about oak, but that's a good wood for a man's bedroom. Oak bedroom furniture, like oak dining room furniture, is heavy and massive. Not a bit feminine. And if we had a man's room to furnish it would be in oak, in

The younger Rockefeller recently confided to me that he is planning a group of attractive living centers, or clubs, for students of all nationalities, to promote more intimately, more strongly because he believes that through the intimate meeting of the best young minds from all lands, international understanding and international peace will be furthered especially in the longest future. New York, Jan. 30—Brisk upward progress was made by the share market in the afternoon trading today, making one of the widest advances for a single session in several weeks.

Worthington Pump and Columbian Carbon were buoyant features, rising 8 and 6 points to the accompaniment of rumors of valuable contracts in connection with National Gas Company. Uranium gained nearly as much.

Issuing today 4 to 4 installed Bethlehem Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, Eastman, Underwood, Elliott, Johns Manville, Byers, Case, Allis dChealmers and Foster Wheeler. Sears Peabuck stiffened after early nearness. Sales aggregated about 2,300,000 shares.

COPPERS AND OILS LAG

Outstanding laggards were the coppers and oils. The latter being held back by the threat of another outburst of crude oil production.

While the share market maintained a strong tone, trading was light and highly professional, little more active than yesterday.

The hearings in Washington regarding modification of the reserve certificates continued to inject an element of uncertainty into the security market outlook, and in call bond division the government obligations again exhibit soggy.

The Bethlehem Steel statement appeared to have been somewhat better than expected, or at least than price levels had about reached bottom, and profit margins in 1931 would be more satisfactory.

DuPont's net of 54.64 s share compared with dividend requirements of $4. The report was interesting in its indication that General Motors, in which is the largest stockholder, earned about $3.17 a share, of which only 19 cents was non-operating profit, so that the annual dividend of $3 was virtually earned.

One of the most favorable developments in the day's news was the further and unexpected decrease of $23,000,000 in brokers' loans. The persistent decline in loans since the first of last year, despite gradual improvement in share prices, has indicated a steady strengthening of the market's foundation.

The upturn in Worthington was in response to paying off of accumulated back dividends on the preferred and in unconfirmed report of a large contract for high pressors and equipment for a large pipe line project.

Stone & Webster was sold on the grounds of a possible reduction in the dividend, although it is understood directors plan to make the regular payment at the next meeting, and govern future dividend payments by the course of general business.

International Nickel encountered some selling as a result of confirmation with informational that which passed its dividend. Nickel directors do not meet until Monday.

Boston Wool Prices Are Found Firmer

Local offices of the United States Department of Agriculture say:

"Prices on domestic combing wools of the finer grades are showing a firmer tendency. Bids that were acceptable early in the week are being withdrawn quite freely. A more confident feeling among members of the trade is being created by the continued steady, moderate demand for 58s, 60s and 64s and finer territory wools. Another reassuring feature is the better tone of cable reports from primary markets and the primary foreign markets."

Domestic Delivered Copper 9 3-4 Cts.

Custom smelters are selling domestic copper for domestic shipment at 9¾ cents delivered, but buyers are not anxious to take a total of copper at this time and seem to be waiting for lower prices. Export copper is a drop in the nominal price of copper, amounting to ¼ cent a pound, the truth is that for the last two days or so custom smelters would have sold at 9¾ cents delivered if they had received such a bid from a consumer.

Graham Paige Adds to Its Employment

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Graham Paige Motors Corp. has increased production schedules and taken on more employes as a result of a revolus given the motor industry by the automobile shows, a total of 2180 workers now being employed at the main factory in eDtroit and the body plant at Wayne, Mich., an increase of 400 this month. In addition 125 men were added at the body plant at Evansville, Ind.

Government Issues Are Again Lowered

New York, Jan. 30—U. S. Government securities were generally to maintain the recovery which developed in the final hours of yesterday's session and resumed their decline today, although less pronounced. Corporate investment issues, however, displayed better powers of resistance.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Jan. 30—Grains closed generally lower today. Wheat was unchanged to ¾c. down, corn 1 to 1¼c. off and oats ½ to ¾c. lower. Rye finished ½ to ¾c down.

BOSTON TRADE TREND UPWARD, SAYS DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston—Business improvement is slow, but the trend apparently is upward. Since factories are increasing their productions and manufacturers of the lower-priced lines have booked enough orders to keep them busy for several months.

Prices generally are somewhat lower. Conservative models in black are the most sought for, but fairly good orders have been received for the popular-priced patent leather lines.

Several large orders for upper leather and bottom stock are reported to have been placed during the week but these were mostly at price concessions.

Shipment of shoes from Haverhill for the month of December amounted to 7196 cases, as compared with 11,451 cases for December, 1929, and were at the lowest point recorded in the past five years.

Total shipments during the year amounted to 213,472 cases, as compared with 373,426 cases for the year before. Raw cotton prices are firmer and the northeastern mills are beginning to buy fair amounts of extra staple cotton.

The call for the grey goods has been increasing considerably, but prices are weak. Finished goods are not selling as well as expected, but prices are firmer and a decrease in the demand is expected.

N.E. TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS INCREASE

Faster toll service, more accurate local service and betterment in business relations with its customers are 1930 achievements set forth by President Matt B. Jones in the 67th annual report of the directors of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. to its stockholders.

More business offices, more personal service, greater speed in installing telephones, and less lag between closing and delivering directories contribute to that end.

Increase in the company's telephones was 14,522. The company put in 282,136, telephones during 1930 a normal number but due to business conditions there were 267,608 removals, which is distinctly abnormal.

In 1930 the company earned its dividends and carried to surplus $1,477,664. The company's average book costs of plant, equipment and working capital was $1,288,772,210; its earnings were at the rate of 5.70 per cent, which President Jones points out is considerably less than adequate.

Operating revenues increased slightly. Operation and taxes took an even smaller increase. But as a result of depreciation charges on increased plant, and of half a million dollars in added 'taxes, the net was less than in the previous year.

This year's gross expenditure for construction and equipment was $35,000,000; and buildings accounting for $3,500,000, central office equipment for $8,000,000, station equipment for $5,500,000, exchange lines for $10,400,000, and toll lines for $3,500,000—all round figures.

President Jones records the fact that, of nearly 22,000 employes, more than 90 per cent took advantage of thrift opportunities the company offers, to save systematically and has $5,000,000, or approximately 13 per cent of their total pay.

The report includes the usual financial details, and is embellished with engravings of new telephone buildings erected during the year in Boston, Ostarville, Pittsfield, Rockport, Spencer, Wareham and Winchendon, Massachusetts; Bangor, Camden Clinton and Gardiner, Maine; and Farmington, New Hampshire.

$20,000,000 Well Spent

Gov. Ely's Sane, Progressive Program

Governor Ely's budget message in which he urged a special bond issue of $20,000,000 in order that employment of a useful, constructive character may be furnished our people sorely in need of work and income combined the essential elements of sound statesmanship.

The Governor was aggressive and candid. His address was marked throughout by clarity and logic. Above all, he manifested a humane concern for the plight of his fellowman and a progressive, unbounded confidence in the future growth and development of Massachusetts.

What does he propose?

He proposes, in short, that $20,000,000 shall be expended not in grabbag fashion but in a sensible, specific, definite program of construction of modern buildings and highways which are necessary to the requirements of the people of the State.

He would spend $1,500,000 this year toward completing the new Prison Colony at Norfolk in order that the State may the more quickly abandon the Charlestown State Prison. This prison was condemned as a death and fire-trap fifty years ago. It is today a death and fire-trap, menacing the health and the morals of the unfortunate people committed to the custody of the State.

He would spend $750,000 on the new Metropolitan Hospital for Mental Diseases, $600,000 on the Boston State Hospital and substantial amounts for enlargement of the mental and medical hospitals in other sections of the State.

Every citizen of this State knows that our State institutions are miserably overcrowded. Ill and infirm people are occupying cots in corridors and attics of antiquated buildings while thousands of other people are denied admission to these institutions in which they are entitled to receive care because as citizens they are paying the cost of it.

He would spend $250,000 for the construction of modern hangars for the State at the Boston Airport. Every citizen with pride of reputation in his State knows that the State hangars are in such a disgraceful state that the national government has threatened to withdraw its contribution to the military aviation force now quartered in structures unsuitable and inflammable.

He would spend $1,500,000 for construction of a modern office building in which the public works enterprises and the Registry of Motor Vehicles would be established, thus enabling Commonwealth Pier to be devoted to the use it was intended—that of a pier for promotion of Boston shipping rather than as an isolated countinghouse.

These projects are typical of the definiteness with which Governor Ely has set forth the entire program.

The need is abundantly evident. He would complete them now, instead of staggering them over a period of years. Wasteful, piecemeal construction would be eliminated. The State would receive the advantage of the low price of construction materials. The State would be saved the distressing increase of taxes which would retard rather than expedite the general recovery of business at this time. Men would be put to work. Their spending power would be enhanced. Private business would respond to the optimism generated by the leadership of the State.

The members of the Legislature should share with Governor Ely the satisfaction and commendation that will come from the adoption of this program. It is not a time to struggle for partisan political advantage when men and women are pleading for work.

Brevity in News

Few Words, Many Readers

Brevity is the soul of much besides wit. Take the Wickersham report. It would have been read by more if it had been shorter. This fact was grasped by the Boston Evening American and other Hearst newspapers when the report appeared. Hence they published a condensed summary, giving the gist of the 90,000-word document at a glance. This summary told the facts so concisely and thoroughly that the Senate of the United States has unanimously ordered it reprinted in the Congressional Record. Senator Blaine (R.), of Wisconsin, says:

"The report itself is very lengthy and probably will be read by very few people. The condensed summary gives the gist in readable form. Written by George R. Holmes, correspondent of the Hearst International News Service, it is concise, accurate and adequate."

Hearst newspapers believe in brevity.

That helps to explain, if you're interested, why they reach thirty million readers, and why in Boston the American has a far greater circulation than any other evening paper.

Spring Styles

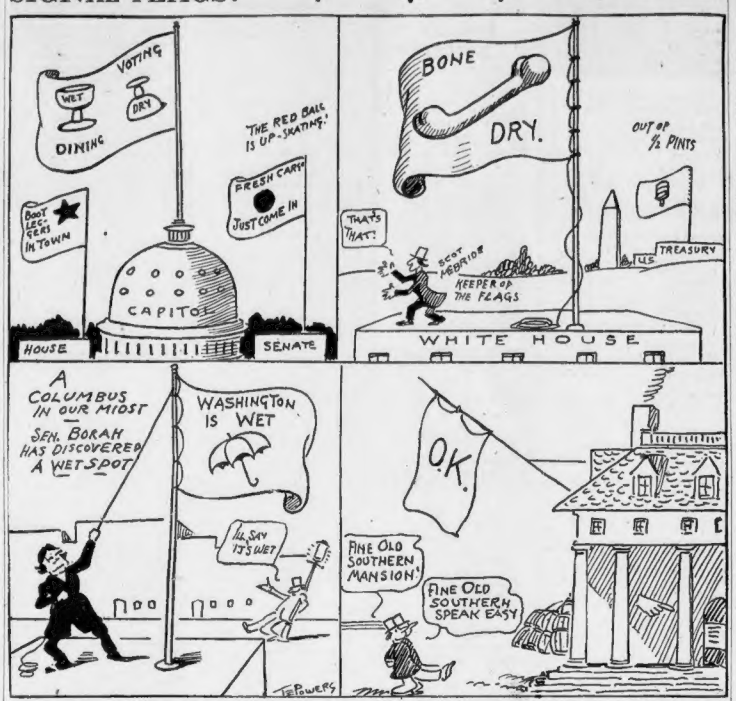
A Handy Guide

Not that it matters, perhaps, but here is what the well-dressed man will wear this Spring:

Pleated or plain trousers; double or single-breasted coat; black or brown shoes with boxed or pointed toes; felt hat, Derby hat, or straw hat; white shirt or colored shirt; braces (galluses to you) or belt; and plain, fancy, bright or sober neckties.

That's the forecast. If in doubt what to buy, consult it. With it for a guide, you can't go wrong.

SIGNAL FLAGS! -:- -:- -:- By T. E. Powers



Listen, World! -:- Brooding

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Is an Inferiority Complex?

SCORES OF letters a day, with a hundred different problems. But always a pathetic pile with the same sad cry:

"Life isn't worth living. I can't ever be like other people. Everything I do seems to go wrong. And I feel that people are always laughing or sneering at me, and I hate myself as much as they hate me. I guess this is what they call 'an inferiority complex'! But is there any cure for it? If there isn't, I might as well be dead. What is the matter with me?"

Elsie Robinson

Probably not a thing, my friend. Chances are you are as capable and intelligent as any other human, with all the makings in you of popularity and success. But, of course, being human, you're not perfect. You have your ups and downs. And that's where your trouble lies.

All your life you've brooded over those imperfections—brooded over your ups and downs—concentrated on yourself. How'd you get that wrong start? I don't know. The wrong environment. The wrong training . . . some lack or loss or fear or hate that set you brooding over yourself as compensation . . . any one of a thousand mishaps might have started you that way. Such things happen to all of us. No child has all the breaks. But some of us get over it. And some of us don't.

The main point now isn't how you got that way, but how to get over it. For you have magnified yourself and your miseries until you've crowded the rest of the world out of the picture.

In a strange, sick way, an inferiority complex is very much like a superiority complex. In either case you spend all the time thinking about yourself. It doesn't matter whether you think hopelessly or happily—whether your pleased or peevish. The result is the same. You, yourself, become your sole interest. And if you spend all your time thinking about yourself, you aren't going to spend much time thinking about the other fellow.

Then it's a cinch that the other fellow isn't going to spend much time thinking about you.

So you become stranded, lonely. And your magnified Self Importance becomes an obsession. An irritating obsession. An obsession that sickens and thickens on you like a disease.

There's only one way to cure an Inferiority Complex. You can't cure it by digging into the past and its ancient injustices. You can cure it by getting rid of this obsession of Self.

Stop thinking about yourself by thinking of others.

Realize that these people you meet in the office, at parties, on the street, are all of a piece with you. Realize that they dream and suffer and blunder and rejoice . . . and make fools of themselves . . . just as you do.

Realize, particularly, that they have as many handicaps to overcome, as many sad memories to endure, as you have—perhaps more.

Realize that their seeming happiness and success is based on countless struggles and failures and embarrassments.

Turn your eyes from yourself to those of other people. Concentrate on them until they become alive to you. People have never really become alive to you. You have never been really interested in them as individuals, with problems and personalities of their own. You have been interested in them only as they affected your life.

See them now for themselves and they'll see you for yourself. Be interested in them and they'll be interested in you.

And in the happiness of this adventure you'll forget your old bitterness and bewilderment.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Thoughts while strolling: The dolorous cry again of "Cash Clo'" men. Pierre, the Mussolini of dining rooms. People who pronounce theater "thutta." I'd like to see Florence Reed and Pauline Lord in the same play. One of those agonizing things that make you sob out loud.

V. V. McNitt, a Trent, Mich., boy, who made good in the city. Wish Meredith Nicholson would come to town. Simile: "As glittering as a nut store." Lads who wear mufflers jauntily. Mine gives the appearance of a sore throat. Never went to a big party without seeing Louis Wiley.

That avenue jewelry store that opened the day of the crash. And weathered the storm. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who belongs to more clubs than the Prince of Wales. Wellington Cross and wife. A blonde with turbaned East Indian. Broadway's best known haberdashery clerk—Dave Levy.

A poetically named tea room: "The Cafe of Graceful Pause." If anyone asks me to any more backgammon parties I'll scream. The only thing that will stop me on the way to a fire is a taxicab drivers' row. O. Soglow, the artist. London is giving Paris a run in perfume making.

* * *

Anna May Wong speaks not only English and Chinese, but French and German. Her real name means Frosted-Yellow-Willows. Those old fellows with string ties and wide hats who look like stage types of great statesmen. And sell corn salve on street corners.

The studio where Clare Briggs first lived in New York. Why is memory such a tyrant? Some people infuse a shrug with high drama. A fellow I should have tipped last Xmas but didn't. Business of gazing into a window. The yacht business is not what it was.

* * *

While New York has a few remaining slums, not one offers that depressing squalor most of us knew back home by such names as Frog Holler, Jimtown or such and stretched so drearily back of town and across the railroad tracks. They were approached through a gully of tin cans, roaming goats and acrid odors. In such districts was always an incredibly old man with matted hair hobbling about with a crooked stick. He was known as a miser and finished up in the potter's field.

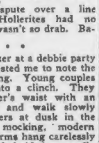
* * *

In these areas were poor white trash types of boys who chased you and me home from school. The girls had sore eyes and peeped from behind kitchen doors when strangers passed. A man became of age when he had suffered the seven-year itch three times. Almost invariably there was a family named Potts and another named Parsons.

There was no grandiloquent institution such as The City Infirmary. It was known harshly as the poor-house and an inmate was "livin' off the county." Skirting such district was "The Pest House," where seasonal victims of smallpox were taken. Today they are known as Isolation Hospitals.

* * *

Fortnightly some resident of the Fog Holler would load up on pop-skull whiskey and on his way home fire off a 48-calibre revolver in front of the Baptist church and in police court next day faced the charge of "disturbing public worship." Then, too, there would be those long-drawn-out feuds. About once a year someone would knock-off a neighbor from ambush in a dispute over a line fence. Frog Hollerites had no money but life wasn't so drab. Balooey!



* * *

As a brief peeker at a debbie party recently it interested me to note the change in dancing. Young couples no longer go into a clinch. They circle each other's waist with an indifferent arm and walk slowly around like lovers at dusk in the leafy Bois—a mocking, modern scherzo. Free arms hang carelessly at sides and hands hold the casually puffed cigarette. It is a bored gesture of sure indifference, the ladies turning to those who cut in with a suppressed yawn. It was no place for an old dodo who likes to twirl in a Gay Ninety waltz. One-two-three! One-two-three!

Happy Youth, Few Clothes

Is This What Our Youth Is Striving For?

A YOUNG COUPLE OF THE PHILIPPINES

It is hard to believe, but these two are included among the children of Uncle Sam. They live in the Philippines, and their tribe, that of the Mangyans, is one of the most primitive in the islands.

This photograph, taken by an explorer for the National Geographic Magazine, shows a young Mangyan couple in holiday costume visiting one of Uncle Sam's flying fields, to see "the big birds" that make such a loud noise.

You notice the young man carrying in his belt a knife that looks as though it might be made useful if anybody should try to alienate the affection of the young girl beside him or any other property belonging to him.

Modern young people will be interested in these clothes, far removed from costumes that may be seen on the beaches of Winter resorts. They are rather more elaborate than many costumes worn at the seashore in the Summertime by us "highly civilized beings."

When we took over the Philippines we expected, of course, to "raise them to our degree of civilization," whatever that degree may be.

But, judging by modern costume, it looks as though our young people were hurrying downward toward the Mangyan style, instead of lifting the Mangyans up to old-fashioned American dress ideas.

The National Geographic Magazine renders public service in printing pictures of this kind. They make people think.

Take Your Choice

JOAN OF ARC

NINON DE L'ENCLOS

You know one of these ladies, if not both. Both were worth knowing.

Their pictures are published here to show you two types of women. All women belong to one of these types or the other.

There is the Joan of Arc type, efficient, earnest, and devoted to causes, not men. And there is the Ninon de L'Enclos type, devoted to men, not causes.

Joan of Arc led armies around France and saved her country. Ninon de L'Enclos led men around by the nose, and saved nobody to speak of.

Joan was a good woman. Ninon was an interesting woman. That was the chief difference between them.

We have, probably, more Joan of Arcs in this country than Ninons.

Maurice De Kobra, brilliant French novelist now studying women from the vantage point of the Rits Tower, tells us that is what is the matter with us. Fewer Joans and more Ninons are what America needs, says Mr. De Kobra.

"French women," he declares, "are like champagne. American women are like mineral water, healthy, good, necessary, but not much kick. America has great women, brave, wise, good women, but no sparkling, silken women. It won't have any until the women of America are wise enough to give up the futile attempt to compete with men on their own level in sports, business, professions and study, and to learn instead the psychology of love.

"They should study how to make their way into a man's heart, not how to make their way into a man's world."
